Children Can't Really Build Hospitals.
But You Can

Summer on Long Island. Days to relax and recharge. Memories to paint in sun and sand, in wind and water. But while you and your children are frolicking with friends, or fighting over that last burger at the barbecue, other children are fighting for their lives. For them, a summer day is just another 24 hours of childhood lost forever.

Fortunately, there's a place on Long Island where people understand what it is to be young, sick and afraid. Where extraordinary pediatric medicine is practiced in a child-friendly environment. Where families from around the corner and around the world come to find hope and healing.

That place is Schneider Children's Hospital.

But with more and more sick children seeking treatment each year, the Children's Hospital is bursting at the seams. We must build a new inpatient hospital. Our children deserve it!

And that is where we need your financial support. Schneider Children's Hospital has embarked on an ambitious quest to raise the $100 million it will take to build this new hospital to serve the growing needs of sick children worldwide. There are many opportunities for families and corporations to create a lasting legacy while making a critical difference in thousands of young lives.

Call 516-465-2569 today and help us make this dream come true. Their hope is in your hands.

Do you need to refinance?

But don't know who to trust?

Hauppauge, NY – This is a task many of us dread. At one time or another in our lives we have to refinance, whether it's to get some money to dormer your house or to consolidate your bills. Often, refinancing is the only way you can accomplish these goals. You come to this realization and then dread the road that lies ahead. What do you do now? Who do you call? What questions do you ask?

I have a confession to make. I, myself have refinanced three times in the last five years. And you know what? I was ripped off twice!! All three times I prepared myself for the process and figured I would do it right and get a good deal. Not a chance!!

I GOT TRICKED TWICE!!

How infuriating! You have to refinance, there's no way around it and you are forced into this process that the mortgage lenders have formulated to force you to play by their rules. Sometimes you get a document called a Good Faith Estimate (GFE). What a joke these things are! These GFEs are supposed to tell you what your interest rate is and what your closing costs are. You get this thing and say, "OK, my closing costs are $10,000 and my interest rate is 6.25%". Then you go to the closing and everything is different! This is called:

THE OLD BAIT AND SWITCH.

The loan officer who has been so charming, helpful and nice explains to you how the GFE is only an estimate and the rate is "only" one half a percent higher and the closing costs are "only" a couple of thousand more. He tells you it's essentially the same and that you should sign. Meanwhile, your contractor has your house half apart and your credit cards are late and collectors are calling you at your job!! SO ..... you sign. That's what I did.

The second time I refinanced I thought I was getting a fixed rate. Then the same thing happened. I went to the closing and the paperwork said I was getting an adjustable rate! Can you believe it?? This loan had an interest rate that adjusted every 6 months. The loan officer (who looked younger than my 23 year old son) told me it was because my credit score was too low. NONSENSE! My credit scores were over 700, which is excellent. I knew this because I had done my homework and got a copy of my credit report. BUT ... Unfortunately, I went ahead with it anyway because I was an idiot. You would have thought that I had learned my lesson from the last time. But no! I was due for 2 mortgage payments and the phone calls from my mortgage company were coming fast and furious.

Well, the mortgage adjusted 2 times in the first year and my payment had gone up over $500.00!! I had to refinance again before my rate screamed up to a million percent!! But

THIS TIME WOULD BE DIFFERENT!!

I finally got the answers I was looking for. I read an article in a local paper about a mortgage expert who had written a report on how to go about refinancing your home and how you can make sure you can't possibly be taken advantage of and ripped off. The article gave a toll free number to call to get a copy of the Free Report mentioned in the ad. As much as I hate answering machines, I was pleased to listen to a recorded message with an option to get the "Free Report" sent by mail. When the Free Report came, I finally understood what I was doing wrong!

The Free report explained that most people make the simple mistake of not getting the loan disclosures mailed to them. Unfortunately, most people just hear WHAT THEY WANT TO HEAR! Just because they say you are going to get that great rate at such low fees doesn't mean you're actually going to get it!! Don't let this happen to you! You learn what to ask for from the mortgage lender you're dealing with.

The mortgage industry is one of the most highly regulated in the country because of all the abuse of these predatory lenders. You learn who these guys are and how to avoid them. Does it sound like maybe this author and I are a little paranoid? Well, when you're dealing with your home, don't you think

YOU SHOULD BE PARANOID?

Just look at what this Free Report tells you: The 10 questions you must ask any mortgage lender, the six things your lender doesn't want you to know, and lastly, the six biggest and costliest mistakes made when refinancing.

As a very experienced financial analyst, I give this report my highest recommendation. You're crazy if you don't at least call to get a copy of the Free Report for yourself. To receive this Free Report call the toll free number:

1-888-355-0091 Extension 8070

for a free 24 hour recorded message. Finally, someone figured out a way to give the public the real scoop on the bank and mortgage industry. Call Now!

TWO THUMBS UP! YAH!

ALSO ... the author of this free report (on a very limited basis) gives you the option to let him give you free advice himself. I strongly advise you to select this option. You just tell them you want to deal with the President of the company on the recorded message and they will send you an analysis form to fill out and the President of the company will personally call you back and give you a free phone consultation. Wow!! This is what I did. He gave me incredible advice and got me a great deal and an education to last me a lifetime. I can't thank him enough.

Roping off the Beaches

Why Do Plovers Get the Royal Treatment? They're Not Endangered!

By Dan Rattiner

Every spring, in mid-May, a species of tiny shore birds known as piping plovers flap their little wings and come north from the southlands to make their way to the coastlines of Long Island and New England for the summer. There they couple off, establish themselves with little nests at the back of beaches just where it rises up to the dunes, dig a small depression, line it with shells and rocks, and make it their home. This is followed by mating, egg laying and then the raising of little families there. Sometime in the middle of August, the kids are grown and everybody flies off.

Now this activity might be considered pretty cute by certain concerned environmentalists, or maybe sort of wonderful largess for an evening meal by sportsmen during the hunting season, except for one thing. People who love piping plovers have arranged with the government to make it a crime for anybody to be on the beach where a piping plover couple choose to make a nest. The government does allow other creatures to share the beach with piping plovers — foxes, crabs, Portuguese Men o' War, harp seals and spotted salamanders and anything else that wanders over — but not humans. They put up yellow crime tape when a piping plover nest is found. Go there, read the sign, go in anyway and you can get fined thousands of dollars.

The government does allow other creatures to share the beach with piping plovers — but not humans

The thing that bothers me about this, other than the fact that these beaches are now off limits to humans five months a year, is that humans have been singled out. Foxes go in there and eat the eggs. Nothing happens to them. Are humans not part of the food chain?

Another thing that has become quite apparent to me is that over the years that this has been going on, which is maybe fifteen years, what was at first just one stretch of beach extending maybe a hundred yards along the sea has grown to dozens and hundreds. During those five months, about twenty percent of the beach is closed off. Just for these damn birds. People with oceanfront homes live in fear that these privileged little creatures will arrive and block their access. It's happened. It's also happened that numerous public beaches have been closed because of piping plovers. Last summer, the Fourth of July fireworks in East Hampton got cancelled for the first time in one hundred years. They did it for two piping plovers.

Now, with the larger and larger numbers of piping plovers showing up from one year to the next, my question is, simply, when does an endangered number of piping plovers, say two or three which I would not object to helping out to save the species, become an infestation like locusts? What if there were an inundation of them — millions of them — and some horror film maker made a movie about them with people running around under them all bloody and screaming and yelling as they fall to the ground? There has got to be a tipping point. At which point we should be able to go in and shoot them. The idea being we keep the population under control, as we do with deer. I looked into it.

In 1989 when the first piping plover laws were put into effect, there were 191 pairs counted along the beaches of New York. This count has steadily risen. In 2004, the total was 386 pairs.

I might note that during this time the number of pairs along the New Jersey Shore has risen from just 128 to 144. And up in Connecticut it has risen from 34 to just 37. The plover population, having discovered the draconian measures taken by the authorities in New York State with the crime tape and everything, have decided that our beaches are the IN beaches now. They've told their friends. More than twice as many come here than in 1989. We are more than twice as successful in bringing this bird back from the brink of extinction.

Oddly, I have found out that piping plovers were nowhere near heading toward extinction, by the way. They are not on the endangered list. Never were. They are on another list called a "threatened" list. Lots of creatures are on the "threatened" list. They get put on there, they copulate and multiply, they move off, we shoot them. This is what has just happened with the black bears out in Wyoming, which we have all seen being dragged out from underneath porches. But this has not happened with the piping plovers. Who runs their lobby group in Congress? They are doing a helluva job.

Another fact is that the piping plovers on the New York beaches raise larger families than on any other beaches in the Northeast, with one minor exception. In 2004, the U. S. Wildlife rangers and docents who go out and count these things, noted that plovers in New York fledged an average of 1.46 chicks per pair. (Since they can't go in there either, they must use binoculars.) This was a more successful outcome than in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut or New Jersey. Only Rhode Island had a better outcome at 1.50 chicks per pair. But they only had 70 nesting pairs. (Although this is slightly less than two chicks per pair, consider that pairs nest for years and years. The trend in the population is up.)

An interesting lesson should have been learned from the experience of New Hampshire, but wasn't. For the first eight years that the rangers and docents went out to look along the beaches in that state, there were no piping plovers at all. The beaches, about forty miles of them, were lined with people on

YOU Can Have a Character from Shakespeare as a Summer Guest

By Dan Rattiner

This is an appeal to the residents of Montauk and the Hamptons on behalf of the Shakespeare Summer Festival. After ten successful seasons, it seems that the Festival will have to be cancelled for this year because of a problem with Suffolk County. The company needs a place to put up the actors. The county won't go along with it.

For each of the last ten years, an arrangement has been reached with the county to lease, at very low cost, the nine small cabins and four motel units located behind Third House that sit on the vast acreage of Theodore Roosevelt County Park in Montauk. The actors were housed here for the duration of the summer. And the performances would take place, to the delight of the local theatergoers sitting in portable stands, on a set constructed in a field between Third House and the swimming pool area.

This year, however, the Third House is being renovated and restored. And for budgetary reasons, the County agreed last year to provide housing for the workers who would perform this work, a decision that resulted in a much lower bid to do the work. This housing would be in the cabins behind Third House.

"We've been trying to work it out with the County," said David Brandenburg from the Festival's New York Office. "But it isn't working out. If we can't find some place to house the actors, we will have to cancel the summer season. Right now it is on hold. So we are appealing to the people of Montauk, and also the rest of the Hamptons. We are hopeful that about five people will step forward and offer housing to our players. These are accomplished actors, with New York City credits. It's a lot to ask. We income is about $250,000 a season, considering the number of people who come out here to attend the festival. This year, if Brandenburg can get the housing, he will do a production not by Shakespeare, but about Shakespeare's plays, called The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (Abridged). This production was originally performed in Manhattan by a group called the Reduced Shakespeare Company. It requires fewer actors than most regular Shakespeare plays, goes at top speed and is hilariously funny. So say the reviewers.

So here's your chance, readers of Dan's Papers. How would you like to offer the use of a spare bedroom in your home to one of the actors from the Hamptons Shakespeare Festival? I know it would depend on what sort of house you run. Maybe you have a party every night and would like one of the revelers from the Midsummer Night's Dream.

Maybe you have a party every night and would like one of the revelers from the Midsummer Night's Dream. Puck would do.

think we will need six weeks from anyone who could volunteer. I don't know what else to do."

The schedule for the productions begins in the first week in July. In prior years, the performances had been held five evenings a week there at the county park. For a final week the performances are held on the green at Lake Agawam Park in Southampton. Brandenburg estimates that the value to the community in

Puck would do. Invite him and he will, out on the deck, canter about on his cloven hooves and entertain your guests grandly. "I am that merry wanderer of the night. I jest to Oberon, and make him smile, When I a fat and bean-fed horse beguile, Neighing in likeness of a filly foal: And sometime lurk I in a gossip's bowl, In very likeness of a roasted crab."

Iago (continued from previous page)

If you have a more sedate home, one where the New York Times is read, classical music is played, and the family debates the issues of the day most of the afternoon, why not have one of the Kings?

Perhaps it would be King Richard III. He'd come downstairs in the middle of the afternoon, having just driven to the beach and cry, "My Kingdom, for a Parking Space."

If you load your house with a bunch of feminists, save a room for Lady Macbeth. "Look like the innocent flower, but be the serpent under 't."

Or if your friends are all psychiatrists, take in Hamlet. "To be, or not to be, that is the question." They could spend days and days examining him.

A mistake, I think, might be Macbeth. "Will all great Neptune's ocean wash this blood clean from my hand? No, this my hand will rather the multitudinous seas incarnadine, making the green one red." But Brandenburg says he's not going to get involved with Macbeth this summer. "Is this a dagger which I see before me, the handle toward my hand?"

If you tend toward singles parties and champagne and mixers, however, I really think you ought to consider two people, Romeo and Juliet. They would need two rooms, I think, and a balcony outside at least one of them. They'd sneak around. But love is a wonderful thing to watch, particularly when it is pure and unrequited and unconsummated. Such yearning and mewling. It really gets the old motor going to watch such goings on I think.

"Oh, Romeo, Romeo! Wherefore art thou Romeo?"

Try taking them out to the garden and show them how to weed. Maybe it will help get their minds off things.

My God, there's a man out on the lawn in a white robe shouting at another man who has run off. It's Julius Caesar! Who the hell invited him here? There's a dagger in his back. Oh no. "Et tu, Brute!" And now he's fallen. Somebody call 911.

blankets. (Interestingly, all the villages up there are "Hamptons." They are Hampton Harbor, South Hampton Beach, etc. etc.) Now the last time I looked, wherever people, particularly white people, English speaking people, arrived somewhere where there was nothing holding them up, they planted a flag and it was theirs. If others wanted to go there — other creatures for example — they got picked up and carried off to some game preserve, or if they were native Americans, to an Indian reservation.

But that is not what has happened in New Hampshire. Along those beaches, in New Hampshire, in 2003, the rangers found five piping plovers WHERE THERE HAD BEEN NO PIPING PLOVERS BEFORE. What do you know! You know what they did? They threw the people out and roped off the area. The next year there were seven piping plovers. And there went the neighborhood.

No wonder the number of piping plovers in the Northeast is on its way up.

"The estimate of breeding pairs on the U. S. Atlantic Coast posted a 10.5% increase between 2001 and 2002, followed by a 0.4% gain in 2003," wrote the bureaucrats of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in their annual status report. "The total 2003 U. S. Atlantic breeding pair count of 1420 pairs is the highest since the species' 1986 listing (began)."

And it has gotten better. From 1420 pairs in 2003, the total rose to 1668 pairs in 2004. A

Vicar Hires Private Detective to Spy on Priest in the Rectory. Where?

By Dan Rattiner

During the past few months it has been this newspaper's unfortunate duty to have to report on a big dispute at the Jewish Center of the Hamptons. It involved the rabbi there, the board of trustees of that institution and the congregation, and it took quite some time for it to get resolved.

We have lots of different religions here in the Hamptons with lots of different houses of worship. And so I thought, in the interest of equal time, I ought to find a similar sort of dustup in another religion to report on in these parts. But there wasn't one. What I DID find, however, was something that has just busted loose up in Darien, Connecticut. That's not too far away. And it's a lot more interesting than the one we just had here.

The house of worship in question is the St. John Parish and the situation involves three religious figures: Bishop William Lori, who is the spiritual head of the Catholic Church in Fairfield County; Father Michael Fay, who was the Priest at the Church; and his young assistant, another Priest, with the title of Vicar. His name is Michael Madden.

Two weeks ago, Bishop Lori, after many reported complaints about Father Fay over a considerable period of time — he was the long-time pastor at the church — finally demanded the resignation of Father Fay. He would be replaced on an interim basis by his assistant, Vicar Michael Madden, while they looked for a new priest for this prosperous church. The Vicar had occupied rooms at the Rectory, down the hall from where Father Fay lived.

In announcing the change, the Bishop had thought it important enough to visit the Parish and attend a service, at which he warmly introduced the young Vicar to the congregation. Vicar Madden had been there about six months and the congregation knew him and liked him. Now they could share in the joy of his promotion.

WHY THE POLICE DON'T KNOW THAT TASERS KILL

By Dan Rattiner

Two years ago this spring, two eastern Long Island men were killed accidentally by the police. The police used Tasers on them in order to disable them as they resisted arrest. The first was a heavyset 35-year-old mentally ill man named David Glowezenski who lived in Southampton's Hillcrest section with his family. He was well known to the community, which looked after him as best as it could. In early February 2004, he walked out of the house and down the street in an apparently angry mood, muttering to himself and threatening and then attacking property and people. Neighbors called the police who, while trying to subdue Glowezenski, fired Tasers at him nine times. He died.

Two months later, in April, a 39-year-old man living in Ronkonkoma named Tom Cox was shot five times with Tasers to calm him down during a confrontation with the Suffolk County police. He too died. These things are not supposed to happen.

Tasers are in the arsenal of weapons that police officers carry around. They are an electrical device in the shape of a pistol that fires a dart with an electrical wire on the end from as far as 35 feet away from a target. Five thousand volts of electricity are then administered, successfully disabling the suspect. Recovery is fairly quick, but in the interval, police can safely cuff a suspect who has up until then been resisting arrest.

Tasers are made in only one place in the United States, at a company called Taser International in Scottsdale, Arizona, which holds a patent on the device. After considerable research by the company and others, it was declared safe by the U. S. Government and allowed into service to be used by police officers. A majority of police departments in this

But then, two weeks ago, it was announced that Vicar Madden would be relieved of his assignment. He would be allowed to continue "temporarily" until a new priest was found. After that, he would step aside for a "period of rest and reflection." This was a demotion.

The reason for the Vicar's demotion on top of the resignation of Father Fay was explained in a sermon delivered after services last Sunday by the Vicar. He said that he had personally hired a private investigator to look into the affairs of Father Fay. He lived in the same home as the father. But he had to lock his door every night in order to keep drunken members of the wild parties Father Fay held down the hall from coming into his room. Sometimes, he didn't even come home. He'd just nap in his car until all the revelers left.

His "sin," as he called it, was that he had taken matters into his own hands. The goings-on about Father Fay had been whispered about for quite some time. Many complaints had been brought to the Bishop's attention, going back for more than a year. But nothing had come of it. And so, the Vicar, along with the bookkeeper for the church, who was very concerned about what she thought were improper expenditures of church funds by Fay, agreed to use their own money to hire a private investigator. The investigator had turned over to the authorities what appeared to be improper expenses by Father Fay totaling more than

A limo with Father Fay inside

$200,000. And this investigator, Vito Colucci Jr., had a week earlier reported this information to the man who was in charge of not allowing the Parrish to have its funds looted — Bishop Lori. Bishop Lori, with the goods right there on the table in front of him, finally fired Father Fay, and then after thinking about it for a week, ordered the man he appointed as Father Fay's temporary replacement, the Vicar, demoted for having hired the Private Investigator.

This demotion and this sermon of apology by Vicar Madden — which was not quite as complete in its detail as reported above — resulted in a series of demonstrations in front of the church by hundreds of parishioners. They wanted Vicar Madden reinstated. They loved him. He had done nothing wrong. In fact, he had done the right thing. Father Fay had been a longtime problem and the Bishop had not done anything about it. The Vicar had used his own money to hire the P. I. Why fire HIM?

The details of Father Fay's reign at St. Johns are now slowly leaking out, mostly due to the efforts of diligent reporters, particularly those from the New York Times. The owner of a delicatessen across from the church confirmed the comings and goings of revelers at the Rectory all night long. A former employee of the church said that Father Fay used to proudly describe his sexual exploits to her on a regular basis. Some members of a teenage youth group at the Church raised $10,000, but then found that the account they put the money in had been emptied out without explanation. They never did get an explanation.

Father Fay's annual salary was $28,000 a year plus room and board. It doesn't seem enough to be living the high life, but Father Fay went on cruises, took limousine rides, held fancy dinners and had homes in Florida and the Upper East Side, which he shared with another man.

The Bishop has now returned to this church four times to speak to the parishioners to try to calm them down. So far, he has stuck to his guns. Vicar Madden will be a better man for being allowed to go off for a period of peace and reflection, he told them.

Sort of makes what happened at the Jewish Center here look pretty much like small potatoes, doesn't it?

What Deposit?

Putting Your Money in Washington Mutual Bank and Saying Bye Bye

By Dan Rattiner

People like it when I write about my mother. She and my dad owned White's Drug Store in Montauk for twenty years and they made a great many friends. Dad, who has since passed away, was in the Montauk Fire Department. Mom was a well-known figure in town, though now, at 93, she lives in Florida.

I mention this because a big national bank that has begun to open branches on the East End has caused us to be in touch a lot more than usual. I thank them for this. So this gives us more phone calls for us between Florida and the Hamptons. The conversation is usually about this deposit that went astray. But let Mom tell you about it.

"I think I know the motto for the Washington Mutual Trust Company," she said one day in a phone call. "It's 'Our Bank Never Makes a Mistake.'"

What had happened was that the bank had put about $3,300 into her account that she had not deposited. She keeps careful records. They looked into it. And here is what they found. It was a check somebody had given to me in the Hamptons that I had gone to Washington Mutual Trust to put in my account. I had gone into a branch, given MY social security number, and endorsed it on the back, "Deposit in my account only."

"I have your money," she said.

"I didn't know you had an account in Washington Mutual," I said.

"They have a branch near the apartment. Apparently you have an account in the bank, too."

"I do. I opened it in Riverhead about two years ago. So what do you want to do with the $3,300?"

"I asked the bank to transfer it. They said I should just write a check to you. They said that would be easiest."

"You don't have to write a check to me."

"I already did. I don't need the money. And

Memorial Day weekend has come and gone and now residents are looking to the next great marker of the summer. Sure there's the 4th of July, but anyone can tell you that the fireworks extravaganza on everyone's list is the Boys and Girls Harbor display over Three Mile Harbor. For the past several months, though, residents have been losing sleep over the idea that the fireworks wouldn't occur this year. Tony Duke, who founded Boys and Girls Harbor, has put the 26-acre camp up for sale.

And so, without the camp, the fundraiser (of which the fireworks were part) would not happen, even though the fireworks show had become an East Hampton tradition for a quarter of a century. For all these years, spectators have gathered along the banks of Three Mile Harbor, on the decks of their sailboats and on the lawns of their homes to watch the show.

This year, the skies would be dark..... unless someone else had an idea.

Springs resident Ross Perchik felt that it would be a terrible shame if the fireworks tradition was lost. He set about gaining permits and support to keep the rockets and mortars bursting over the harbor come July. He received the nod from the East Hampton Town Board, the fire marshal, and the marine it's your money. But do you believe this? A bank that is too lazy to make a transfer to fix a mistake?"

A week later, Mom called me back.

"I got a letter from the Washington Mutual Trust Company. It says they have completed their investigation and they behaved appropriately. They didn't do anything wrong. The letter is from a Vice President."

"They put my money in your account."

"Good thing we know each other, eh? And don't you keep track of these things?"

"I'm very busy."

"What if I weren't your mother?"

"Ma," I said. "I'll pay better attention."

A week later, she called again.

"I spoke to a manager at the bank, asking for an explanation of the letter. He said that your name is on my account, so when I went to the branch to deposit it, they deposited it in an account that has your name on it."

"I didn't know I was on your account."

"Remember I asked you to sign something? I sent it to Nancy and she signed and she sent it to you and you signed and you sent it back to me."

"I knew it was for a bank. But I didn't know which one."

"I think this bank feels they did the right thing because they put the check in the bank. It got in. So there it is in their bank. No problem. And we do have an unusual name. You really ought to call the branch manager there."

I called the manager of the Riverhead branch. The reason I called Riverhead was because that is where I opened my account and that is where I thought I had deposited this check. The only other number I had for this bank was an 800 number. And I think the people who answer the phone are in Ohio.

The manager took issue with just about everything I told her.

"Which teller did you make the deposit with? (I didn't know.) Are you sure you didn't tell the teller to deposit the check in your mother's account? (How would I do that if I didn't know my mother had an account there?) What if the teller says you asked to put it in your mother's account? I can ask them all. We don't have that many. Who am I to believe. (What?) How could you not know your mother didn't have an account with us? (I don't habitually ask my mother where she opens and closes bank accounts.) You signed your name as a co-signer. (Okay.)" And so forth and so on.

A week later, this branch manager called me to tell me, triumphantly, that my deposit had been made in a branch in Manhattan. It wasn't her problem.

I was puzzled at this at first, because I don't usually bank in Manhattan. So I looked at my appointments diary. Indeed I had been on the North Fork. But then I remembered, I had been overnight in Manhattan and in the morning had made the deposit in a nearby branch before taking the Jitney out east.

A week later, my mother called again.

"I just got a letter from John Rostas, the Executive Vice President for Customer Transactions Excellence. He sent me a survey and wants me to send him my comments on my experience banking at the Carnegie Hill branch of the Washington Mutual Bank in Manhattan. Do they have a branch there? I've never been in it. And where is Carnegie Hill?"

I told her. It's where Sarabeth's Restaurant is, I said. Her advice to me? Get your money out of the Washington Mutual Bank.

Usually, my mother gives good advice. So I called Washington Mutual and asked what the balance was because I intended to write a check to myself for that balance. I was asked my social security number and my mother's maiden name and other identifying information, and then they told me they couldn't tell me the balance. Why? I asked. If you're closing the account, they said, you have to come in in person.

I'm afraid to go in there.

There Will Be 25 Fewer Beautiful Women in the Hamptons This Summer

By David Lion Rattiner

Well, some woman out in the Hamptons is going to get very lucky. ABC is having a casting call for The Bachelor at the Publick House, JL East and the Southampton Inn next weekend. On June 10 the casting call will be from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on June 11 it will be from 12 p.m. to 2 p.m. The reality television show where a bunch of women compete for a guy's love draws quite a few eyeballs. It's a big success that gets millions of viewers to tune in every week to see how far the women in the show will go in order to win their man. This year, the guy is Prince Lorenzo Borghese, who is a handsome 33-year old cosmetics entrepreneur.

The question on everybody's mind is, why the heck would you head out to the Hamptons to find the 25 single bachelorettes? Aren't the Hamptons the place where families come out to their summer homes to enjoy the good life? Well, yes and no.

The producers of the show are looking for single and ambitious 21 to 31-year-old women that are willing to move out to Rome, Italy this summer so that they can shoot the show. It shouldn't be too hard to find these kinds of women out here. After all, the women of the Hamptons are legendary. They also fit the aggressive profile that the producers of the show are looking for (you've seen them cut you in line at a restaurant). We've got plenty of catty girls here who will add drama to a show. We take a weird sort of pride in that. But Rome for the rest of the summer?

I think the tough thing is not finding the right type of woman in the Hamptons, it's convincing them to leave for Rome for the rest of the summer to do the show. After all, who the heck wants to go to Rome in the summer? It's beautiful there, but let's be honest, it's a city. You can't go to the beach there, you can't see the stars (both the ones in the sky and the ones from Hollywood) because they are all here,

IT'S JUST WEEKS TILL WE GET OUR COLLEGE BACK

By Alan Michael Braveman

The 35 million dollar appropriation that New York State Senator Ken La Valle and New York State Assemblyman Fred W Thiele, Jr., wrestled through the state budget process to allow SUNY to acquire Long Island University's Southampton College Campus will be freed from bondage in New York State's Division of Budget Office shortly. This money, when finally transferred, will allow the ownership of the Southampton College campus to be transferred to SUNY Stony Brook and that will be the last step in changing Southampton College from an orphaned small, private college to a singular jewel in the SUNY crown.

Sept of 2006 will see the now shuttered undergraduate campus spring slowly to life with about 200 new and excited students enrolled on a reinvigorated 82-acre campus. Dr. Shirley Strum Kenny, the president of Stony Brook University and the architect behind the realization of this dream, projects that the enrollment will ultimately rise to about 2000 students in the course of a few years and after $10 million plus worth of rehabilitation and construction. The campus will primarily offer undergraduate, upper division courses that will be shaped in an interdisciplinary fashion addressing issues regarding the environment and economic sustainability. These courses will be supported by studies of the political, economic and social issues related to the environment. Stony Brook currently operates the Undergraduate Marine Science Center on the campus in a leased agreement with Long Island University.

Stony Brook brings an amazing array of statistics to the campus. The university's enrollment is larger than the total number of Southampton College graduates. Stony Brook currently has more than 14,287 undergraduright here, in the Hamptons.

And this guy is a cosmetic entrepreneur? Is that a joke? Every single master of the Universe is HERE. RIGHT HERE. You go out at night to any fancy place here in "The Hamptons" as a pretty single women and you'll hear things like, "Yeah, I own Las Vegas."

"You own it?"

"Yeah, I own it. The whole city, it's mine. You want me to buy you a drink?"

"Sure."

I Googled this Prince. He's not like a prince of a country or anything like that. He is an Italian Prince. They got a million of them. He just has that as a title. The first thing that pops up on Google when you type in his name is a pet spa. I'm serious, look it up yourself. And cosmetics entrepreneur? We got famous actors, we got real estate moguls, media moguls and writers (wink, wink).

Let's not forget ladies, we don't want you to go to Rome. We want you here, we like you here. You are part of the culture. Twenty-five of you is a lot! The beaches, the restaurants, the bars and clubs won't be the same. We are going to miss you at all of the parties. The yachts will feel so empty without you. What is the point of even being here if twenty-five of you leave?

I guess we can all understand that you want to get married to a guy who has the word prince in front of his name but just remember that it is only a one in twenty five chance that you are going to get him, and if you don't get him, the summer will have been wasted on a "cosmetics entrepreneur." If you stay here, the chances are probably better that you'll meet a guy ten times better than this dude.

But hey ladies, if you just have to be on television and let millions of people watch you get totally rejected or go off and marry and divorce an Italian Prince, then you should head to Rome. Us guys here are going to miss you, but we'll see you next summer.

Roping (continued from page 30)

further increase of 18%. We are well on our way to infestationdom. But I could have told you that.

So when is it an infestation?

Honestly, we could not wheedle out of any official at the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service what that number would be. They must have it in a vault somewhere. But what they did tell us was that when that total is reached, whatever it is, they will "delist" piping plovers only after five consecutive years at target population. So when we get there, and they will tell us we've gotten there, we have to remain on our toes for quite some time.

And it gets even worse. Even after the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service agrees that the secret number has been reached and five years have passed without having gotten under it, we still can't go out on a beach where the piping plovers nest until we get the go-ahead from the State of New York. And New York can't budge until after the word comes down from the feds, of course.

According to Don Rosenblatt, who works at the New York State Fish and Wildlife Service in Stony Brook, the state then might, might, consider it, but at first just by loosening the restrictions. For example, they might allow a new flexibility. A project by humans might be allowed at the beach if it decimates piping plovers, but only if, in exchange, the humans bring in and protect some other threatened species.

He also said that killing piping plovers will NEVER be allowed. The federal Migratory Bird Treaty of 1919 prohibits the hunting of all migratory birds, with the exception of ducks and geese. Too bad for them.

(In 1919, the little shorebirds, which are too small to be eaten, were killed for their feathers. Putting feathers in hats was all the rage.

IN THE TRENCHES AT THE POTATOHAMPTON 5K

Photos by Kim Goff

By David Lion Rattiner

It was 8 a.m. on the Sunday of Memorial Day weekend and like all of us, I was pretty tired from Saturday night. I had to get pumped up however, because the most important foot race that takes place in the Hamptons was about to happen. The Potatohampton 5k. I honestly have no idea how the heck I made it to this race.

With my iPod in hand, I strapped on my New Balances and drove to Bridgehampton to make it to the race before the gun at 9 a.m. It was quite an event. Nearly 300 people raced and there were even more there that were bright and cheery eyed. People were stretching out, warming up and making small talk. I was finishing up my triple shot of espresso from Starbucks. It was go time.

There was a large tent in the Militia Park on Ocean Road just down from the monument where you got your Potatohampton t-shirt, registered, paid your fee and where you could chat with the founder of the race, Dan Rattiner. The most common question people were asking was, "Why is it a 5k instead of a 10k this year?"

"Because everyone is fat," he would say.

For the most part, though, everyone there was lean and mean. There were a lot of runners that looked really strong and I was pretty sure I was going to get my butt whipped by a bunch of tourists.

Everybody there was acting very casual but when we all hit the street and got to the starting line, we were all business. You could hear the buzz from the piercing iPod ear buds set to maximum blast. One guy was rocking out to Journey. I was in trouble.

I pretty much wanted to die almost the whole race, I was so beat. But I couldn't let myself fall behind this one guy for some reason. He was an older guy, I imagined him being this big hotshot executive who makes millions of dollars. There was no way I was going to let him beat me in a race. I switched my iPod to Eminem and blew by him with just a mile left to go. Then up ahead, by Hildreth Lane, I almost had a heart attack from what I saw in front of me.

He was ten, at the most, probably two hundred yards ahead of me and really cooking at a fast pace. I went into a sprint to catch him. I couldn't believe this little dude. There was a guy riding his bicycle next to him, giving him advice. I got in the way between the bike and him and then matched his pace. I got a good look at this kid. He was definitely no more than ten.

I was really trying to stay focused and not get depressed about the fact that this kid was most likely going to beat me. I inched ahead, he inched ahead again, so I inched ahead. I thought about tripping him, or pushing him over, but then I figured that the guy on the bike would call the cops and I'm not really a violent person anyway.

Finally the kid broke down. YES! I thought in my head, but out loud I said, "Come on, son, you can do it. Let's go!"

I'm a good person, I thought.

Now the poor little kid was really falling behind. I wasn't about to let this kid drag my time down, so I pressed on, only a half mile or so left to the finish back up Ocean Road.

I was pretty pumped about my time, moving at about a seven minute pace, when suddenly, this five-foot-three-inch woman in a full Nike running outfit tried to run by me. Crap.

I went nuts and pulled ahead of her. I really didn't want her to beat me. She looked really fast, though. I could see the finish line now, but started to slow down and then, the speedy woman blew right by me.

At least I beat the ten-year-old, I thought.

The woman is a formidable runner. She will be my sworn running enemy next year, I can tell you that.

I left the race exhausted, said goodbye to my dad and headed over to the Starbucks parking lot. As I went in, I saw Kelsey Grammer (the guy from the show "Frasier" and also who stars in the next X-Men movie) walking out. I wanted to say something. I wanted to ask him if I could interview him for this newspaper. But I didn't. I could barely speak. Besides, he was with his kids and I think he would have thought it was weird.

I later found out that I came in 3rd place for men between the ages of 19 and 29 with a time of 21:10 and 31st overall. Mike Guastell, 35, from New York City placed first with a time of 16:39, Hugh Parker, a fifteen-year-old who lives in Manhattan and attends Collegiate got second with a time of 17:05, and Thomas McGlade, 42 years old, came in third with a time of 17:05 (but was just behind the Hugh).

The women's division was won by Dana Walsh, another New Yorker, age 15, who attends the Convent of the Sacred Heart. She ran the race in 18:53. Laurie Brown of Westhampton Beach was second with 19:25.

patrol. Perchik had even been discussing the donation of the fireworks with Grucci of Bellport, which, for years, has been donating the fireworks to the Boys and Girls Harbor show. Even with all this support, raising the initial funds to pull off the spectacular would be a serious hurdle. Now, he doesn't have to.

The fireworks show will continue. Not because Tony Duke took the property off the market, but because his wife, Maria de Lourdes "Luly" Duke, has taken the reins and now, instead of the fundraiser benefiting Boys and Girls Harbor, the money raised through the sale of tickets to her event, hosted at the waterfront home of the Dukes, will go to Fundacion Amistad, an organization Luly founded in 1997. The "Friendship Foundation" as it translates to in English, was created to build cultural bridges between the people of Cuba and those in the United States. It fosters understanding, and supports myriad programs which lead to a better understanding of Cuban culture. Mrs. Duke, a woman of Cuban descent, remains President and Chairwoman of the organization, which has held five other fundraisers to celebrate various aspects of Cuban and Cuban-American culture.

Being billed as "Noche de Verano en

Painting by Terry Lewis

Varadero," or "A Summer Night in Varadero," the Three Mile Harbor event will embrace the lifestyle of one of Cuba's most elite resort areas — which is rather fitting, I think. I doubt they will be importing white sand and turquoise water (because of that whole ridiculous U.S. embargo), but the fundraiser will nonetheless be spectacular. Tickets for individuals cost $250 per adult, $50 for children, and for those under thirty, a seat will run you $100. But the best seats are at the benefactor's tables, where a $10,000 donation will lasso you a table for ten.

For those unable to attend on the property, you will still be able to catch the fireworks on July 22nd from the same vantage points along or in the harbor as last year. Grucci will continue their connection with the Dukes and will donate a $40,000 to $60,000 fireworks display which will last about 15 minutes. But those fifteen minutes are magical. For anyone that hasn't seen the show, this is one of the great events of the summer.

If you are interested in attending "Noche de Verano en Varadero," please contact Fundacion Amistad at (646) 723-1416 or info@fundacionamistad.org. Otherwise, grab a boat or a lawn chair, sit back and enjoy the show.

Letitia Dusich of Westhampton was third.

The kid I blew by might have been either Emet Jaffe-Pearce, who is a ten-year-old from Bridgehampton who came in with an excellent time for a kid of his age, 21:47. He came in 40th place overall. It was either him or a 12-year-old named Todd Kranenburg who came in 48th place overall, with a time of 22:28. Those are some tough kids.

I did not get the name of the woman who came in 30th overall, but her time was 20:57.

Save Money. Save the Planet. Take Public Transportation.

By T.J. Clemente

Yes there is public bus transportation in the Hamptons, North and South Fork from Orient Point to Montauk Point. But the blue Suffolk county buses are sort of an enigma. Comments like, "I have never been on one and I have lived here my whole life!" are not uncommon. A real estate agent on Shelter Island told this reporter, "Oh, those are for the working people." I'm not sure what that actually means since most people work. Those who come from the city are familiar with bus travel. That means that they know the schedule is a concept based on traffic, weather and the mood swings of the drivers. But it is safe to say that if you wait at a Suffolk county bus stop a bus will arrive every 50 minutes and usually within 15 minutes of the scheduled time. The buses are owned by Suffolk County and canvass the area. They are cheap public transportation. A regular fare of $1.50 can take you from Riverhead to either Montauk or Orient Point. The buses run hourly starting at 6:15 a.m. and run until only 7:45 p.m. However, not all the bus lines start at those times or end at those times. The buses that serve the Hamptons and North Fork are organized into two bus lines, the "92" and the "10." The "10" is subdivided into three lines, the "10A" which travels from the Southampton college campus through

Southampton to the hospital down North Sea Rd through Noyak, Sag Harbor, North Haven and ending at South Ferry.

The "10B" starts at Bridgehampton Commons serving East Hampton, Three Mile Harbor, Springs and looping back to Bridgehampton.

The "10C" starts at the East Hampton train station and covers East Hampton, Amagansett, Hither Hills, Montauk Village, Montauk Dock and Ditch Plains and then loops back.

The "S92" travels from East Hampton through Sag Harbor, Bridgehampton,

NEW RESTAURANTS AND GONE RESTAURANTS

By Steve Haweeli

Another season, another game of "restaurant roulette." Sure, there are scores of restaurants on the East End that one can count on to be called by the same name and be at the same location year after year; John Duck's comes to mind. Or Shippy's. Or Sam's or Spinnakers. But there are also plenty of changes every year in this mercurial market, and this year is no different.

So let me get this straight: Lori Restaurant & Wine Bar replaces James on Main at 75 Main Street in Southampton, but "75 Main" used to be the name of that restaurant. And Starbuck's replaces Chock Full o Nuts, which replaced a diner whose name I forgot, which replaced the Greasy Spoon, which took over from Doobie's Diner, which before that was Paolo's — but he died. By the way, the Southampton Starbuck's is located on County Rd 39, which is also known as Montauk Highway, a.k.a. Route 27, but I digress.

Confused yet? You should be. Even those of us who live here year round are challenged by the seasonal changes that the annual restaurant shuffle brings to these shores — let alone the different appellations for Montauk Highway.

So let's start at the beginning of the Hamptons — Westhampton Beach — where PassionFish replaces Patagonia West on Dune Road. Isn't that the same PassionFish that Tom Schaudel launched in Woodbury? Yup, but he's bringing the successful concept east with a beached up menu and a new location. By the way, Patagonia West replaced the venerable Starr Bogg's which vacated for a year or two but resurfaced last year at 61 Main Street in town. Got that straight?

Back to new restaurants. In Water Mill look for Trata East, an outpost of Manhattan's favorite Greek restaurant, to prevail at the

Southampton Hospital, Southampton, Hampton Bays, Flanders, Riverhead County Center, Riverhead, Central Suffolk Hospital, Mattituck, Southold, Greenport, Orient, and then Orient Point Ferry.

The "S92" connects with the "10A" at Southampton Hospital, Southampton, Sag Harbor, Bridgehampton, and East Hampton.

The "S92" connects with the "10B" only in East Hampton at the Jitney stop.

The "S92" can only connect with the "10C" by either getting off at the East Hampton Rail Road station or by walking the few blocks between the Jitney stop to the train station.

This may sound sort of confusing but actually it is not. "S92" acts like a long-range bus while the "10A," "10B," and "10C" are more local, with the "10C" serving East Hampton To Montauk. The "10B" East Hampton, Springs and Bridgehampton and the "10A" serving mainly Southampton, Noyak, North Sea, North Haven, Sag Harbor to the ferry to Shelter Island via South Ferry. There is no bus service across Shelter Island.

Schedules for each of the lines are available at each town's Chamber of Commerce and most of the libraries. Every train station has a bus stop and all Jitney stops have bus stops also. There is an Information number (631-852-5200) but it only takes calls Mon-Fri 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. which is not much help for the weekenders.

Rule of thumb is after 7 p.m. don't look for these buses. Be patient. They make multiple stops unlike the Jitney. The buses run less than every hour but never sooner than 35 minutes. And they start around 7 a.m.

So if you want to go shopping in Bridgehampton Commons or visit Montauk and Orient Point and you don't have a car, or the money for the taxicab, there is the bus option. Yes, it is for the working folk and for the savvy traveler. If you manage city buses you can manage the Suffolk Transit System. There are discounts for students with student ID between the ages of 14-22. Children under 5 are free with a three-child limit (no free class trips) and seniors and handicapped pay $.50.

Save gas, save money, be adventurous, use public transportation to get around the Hamptons and the North and South Forks.

They were being slaughtered all over the place. Soon they would be down to none.)

So, essentially, there is no hope. Learn to live with piping plovers. They get certain beaches — whichever ones they choose — from March to August. You get them from September to February. That's fair.

And in the meantime, here is a little primer about piping plovers.

They are a small, stocky shorebird resembling a sandpiper. They weigh, as adults, 1.5 to 2 ounces, have a length of 7 inches and a wingspread of 15 inches. They skitter along the beaches, starting and stopping, right down at the very edge of the water, which is where they find insects and little bits of sea life to eat. They peep with a particular call that sounds like "peep-lo."

"The nests (of the piping plovers)," according to the U. S. Wildlife Service, "are generally 150 to 300 feet apart. Average clutch size is four eggs. Both eggs and young are well camouflaged. The young hatch after 27 to 31 days after egg laying. When predators or other intruders come close, the young squat motionless on the sand while the parents attempt to attract the attention of intruders to themselves, often by feigning a broken wing."

Yeah, that'll work.

"By early September both adults and young will have departed for their wintering areas."

Bon voyage. Hey guys, how about you try going back to the Jersey Shore next year? •

Who's Here

By Dan Rattiner

John Roland was the older of two brothers born in Pittsburgh and raised in the steel town of Altoona, Pennsylvania. His father was a lathe machinist and they lived in modest circumstances in a basically lower middle class neighborhood.

A defining event in John Roland's life happened when he was eleven. It goes some way to explain the almost boyish, can-do and truly very optimistic attitude that Roland exhibits, not only on the air, but in private life as well. He sees the cup half full, and not the part that is empty.

"When I was eleven," he said, "My mother got food poisoning. I think it was a pork chop. She got peritonitis and the doctor said she didn't have long to live. This was in 1953. My father decided he couldn't raise us two rambunctious boys alone and we would all go to live with my grandmother in Long Beach, California. My grandfather had retired from the railroad. He would then pack up her affairs.

"But what happened was that after we made all these plans and dad had given notice at work and my grandparents said they would be eager to have us, was that my mom got well. And so, instead of the three of us going, it was all four of us. We went in a 1949 Chevy sedan and settled in Long Beach.

"I remember the most exciting thing I saw when we got there was a palm tree: I didn't think it was real.

"Dad got a job right away as a machinist working during the day, and he worked at a dry cleaner at night. There were a lot of jobs available. And my dad was always inviting new friends home for dinner with us. One night I'd come and there'd be an Indian, not the kind with a dot but with a headdress of feathers, sitting at our table. Another time it would be the Japanese. At school I had a whole new set of friends: Mexicans, Asians.

"It was all new to me. Mom did the cooking and sewing. We didn't have much money. I remember one Christmas she made glazed Spam. I remember how shiny it looked."

Roland went to Franklin High School and then Long Beach Polytechnic High School and then Long Beach State College, which is now the University of California at Long Beach, where he studied English and got a degree to be a teacher.

There was no on campus housing and so he commuted home and he made his college tuition by working at a gas station as a stock clerk, and mowing lawns.

After graduation Roland taught for one semester at Long Beach State College, but he really didn't care for it. So he became a college administrator. His first assignment was to be Assistant to the President.

"We had this crazy art teacher who had gone to Europe and had invited eight or nine sculptors to come to Long Beach for a sculpture symposium and it was my job to help raise money to make all this happen. There was one guy, Kowalski was his name, who had a dream to build a sculpture with radar in it so it could follow the sun and the sun would shine on the steel petals all the time. I had to call the Navy, because these sculptures were all going to do their thing at Long Beach and the Navy donated a radar worth about $100,000 for the project. It was called 'Gathering of Giants.' The sculptures were built on different locations around campus." Among those attending this exciting project was Mark Breslow, who was a producer and director at KNBC in Los Angeles and he brought a crew so they could do a documentary.

"I met with Breslow and he asked me how things were going and I told him that I was really kind of bored and this project was one of the few excitements that we had and now I would have to go back to being the Assistant to the President.

"He said, 'I know Bill Brown at KNBC and I'll talk to him and I'll get you an interview. Maybe you could work there.'"

Roland went to NBC and met Brown, who basically just dismissed him – but going for the interview was an exciting thing.

"I went through the newsroom," Roland said, "and there were tickers going and guys yelling and typewriters going and I thought, 'This is for me.'"

So I drove up every day to see Bill Brown and he finally hired me, as he said later, in order to fire me just to get rid of me. This was in 1965."

Roland's first job was as a network assignment editor; where the fun was, however, was being a reporter.

"I covered the Vietnam riots at San Francisco State. In the morning I'd fly up from Los Angeles to San Francisco and in the evening I'd fly back. The President of the school, Hayakawa, had a lot of guts.

I recall him pulling wires out of one of our sound trucks to silence it. Later he became a United States Senator.

"I covered the Manson trial. I was at the Ambassador Hotel when Bobby Kennedy was shot."

Roland's work came to the attention of Ted

Kavanagh in New York, who called Roland and offered him a job with Metromedia, Channel 5. It was an offer Roland couldn't resist. On September 26, 1969, he started work for Channel 5 as a street reporter. For the next 35 years, he worked at Channel 5, now owned and operated by Fox Television, where he anchored the "Fox 5 Ten O'Clock News."

Roland took an apartment that year on 74th Street between First and York. He had windows that looked out at bricks. "I'm living in a cave," is what he thought. It cost twice as much money as he had to spend in California.

"What was the first story you covered?" I asked.

"A group called the Young Lords had taken over a church and they were demonstrating because they wanted preschool and daycare. At one point we had Pablo Guzman, who was head of the Lords, in the studio with Frank Grimes, who was the cop in charge of keeping law and order there.

"I did whatever came along. I specialized in politics, subway to City Hall; I covered Lindsay's campaign for the presidential nomination and I went to Egypt, to cover the cease fire after the Arab-Israeli War. In the early 1970s I started The Weekend Show and anchored that and worked as a reporter during the week.

Roland developed a conversational style for his anchor work and he soon was co-anchoring with Bill Jorgenson. When Jorgenson left, Roland became the lead anchor of the show.

"I also decided I'd like to be closer to the studio. The studio is on East 67th Street. I moved to 68th Street, between Second and Third. I'd walk two blocks."

Roland began coming out to the Hamptons in 1970. He had met a woman whose best friend was dating a guy in advertising who had a house in Westhampton Beach. Roland took a share.

"I liked that it wasn't that far from the city, and I fell in love with the area. I decided to invest out there. It rubbed me the wrong way to buy an apartment in Manhattan."

Roland's first house in Westhampton was, in 1970, at the Westhampton Air Base, where the housing that had been used for the Air Force personnel had been put up for sale after the base had been closed. He paid ten dollars down and secured one half a duplex that was selling for $30,000. The other half was bought by a friend of his, Ralph Nathan, who is in the film and commercial business and the two lived there for several years.

Roland then bought property on Beaver Dam Creek and was planning to build a house there. In fact he set up a meeting with a lawyer at Magic's Pub, where they would go over all the financing of the deal.

But that's when Roland went to Jim Warren's birthday party.

People who have been around a while remember Jim Warren. He had made millions in the comic book industry and he had an ocean front house near the La Ronde Pavillion. This house sported a bright yellow WWI biplane on the lawn, fronting out on Dune Road. The house itself was a relatively small modern affair with a swimming pool separating the house from the beach.

"I was a member at La Ronde," Roland said. "Joe Rhodie and Kirsten let us share a locker with them; it wasn't very expensive. So it was natural I got to know Jim Warren. He used to hold touch football games out on his beach, which he called the Super Bowl, and one year – it was on the occasion of his birthday – he asked me to do a narration of it, along with Emerson Boozer, one of the greatest New York Jets players of all time. It was a great party.

"I remember sitting out on the beach next to Felix Grucci, of Grucci Fireworks and the big fireworks along the beach spelled out Happy Birthday, Jim Warren, in sulfured lights, and out comes Mr. Entenmann with a birthday cake for Jim and we all sing 'Happy Birthday,' and I think it can't get much better than this. And Warren came over and he said his house was for sale and I told him I couldn't afford it. He said 'I just turned a couple away who offered me my price, but I didn't like them because I didn't like their cat.'

"So I said, 'How much is it?' He gave me the price and I was dismayed. But then he immediately knocked $25,000 off. I said 'I really can't do this,' and he knocked $200,000 off and I said no again and he said, 'You really

US TV networks have rejected a sitcom "Him and Us," a comedy series produced by Sir Elton John and inspired by his life. The show was to focus on an aging gay rocker and his entourage, including Hamptonite Kim Cattrall as manager and Mick Jagger as a recurring character. The character Max Flash would have been based on a mix of various flamboyant musicians. "Little Britain" star Anthony Head was set to play the lead. Elton also wrote the theme tune and a pilot was made for ABC. According to its star Kim Cattrall, the sitcom failed because its plot was too outrageous for US audiences.

Parker will play the wife who is still reeling from the death of her infant son. Meanwhile, the actress laughed off reports that there was going to be a "Sex And The City" movie. "It's hilarious. I haven't heard anything about it. It might be being discussed but no one has discussed it with me."

country currently have Tasers available for use at this time, some departments with rules that they can be used on those who resist arrest, others with an additional rule — they are permitted to be used on people who disobey a police command. As for the company, its stock traded under a dollar for the two years after it was offered up to the public in 2001. It traded as high as $31.65 in December of 2004. And that is when the publicity from the deaths began to seriously affect the business conducted by this company. As of last week, it was trading at $9.61.

According to Amnesty International, more than 110 people have died after being stunned by Tasers around the world in the last three years. Lawsuits have been filed. But they have not been successful, because the research supposedly shows that the Tasers are safe to use. Also, around the country, police officers in some departments, as part of their training, are required to be hit with Taser shots to see how it feels.

Now, however, some new research has come out to show that the earlier testing of Tasers was flawed. They are apparently far more dangerous than previously thought. It is possible they should never have been brought to market in the first place, or at least not until accurate information was obtained and correct instruction provided.

Last year, shortly after some of the highly publicized Taser deaths, a Dr. Ted Chan at the University of California conducted independent research on Tasers by firing them at pigs. Pigs have hearts very similar to those of human beings, which is why in heart operations it is sometimes possible to replace a faulty human heart valve with a pig's heart valve. Chan fired Tasers to the chests of pigs. He was looking to see if such an action could cause a fatal heart arrhythmia, which seemed to be the cause of death, in autopsy, of some of the victims of Taser shots. However, that didn't happen in any of his tests on pigs. Dr. Chan did note at the time that Taser shots might lead to death due to damage done to the blood, but he didn't have the resources to conduct such tests. He also noted that in police officers training they are required to endure a Taser shot of between 1 and 4 seconds, while the average Taser shot out in the field is generally 5 seconds. He said he wanted to look into the matter further.

Last week, another independent researcher, a man named John G. Webster, who is a professor of biomedical engineering at the University of Wisconsin, performed another study. In the tests done by both Chan in California and by Taser International in Scottsdale, the Taser had been shown to be safe with the pigs, and therefore with people. But it occurred to Webster that pigs have a much thicker chest wall of muscle than humans do. Such a thick chest wall could absorb some of the shock, so it would be possible that what was safe for a pig's heart was not so safe for a human heart.

Webster shocked ten anesthetized pigs with a Taser after removing most of the muscle guarding their hearts. He left the amount of muscle that humans have guarding our hearts. What he found was that when a Taser barb was placed on the skin but within 0.7 inches of a pig's heart, all those Tasered suffered a jolt that stunned the heart into ceasing to pump blood, and death occurred. Those who were shot with a barb farther away than 0.7 inches lived.

At the present time, although sales of Tasers have fallen because numerous police departments have abandoned their use, they are still in use in New York City, in Suffolk County and in our local Town and Village Police forces.

Before Tasers became popular, around 2002, police departments either wrestled or threw nets over suspects who were violently resisting arrest and could not be subdued by other means. I do not think Tasers should be taken off the market, but I think there needs to be correct instruction and training about their use. Until that happens, our local departments should be very, very careful with the use of this weapon. It appears unsafe to Taser somebody multiple times, very dangerous to stun them for more than 5 seconds, and absolutely lethal to shoot a Taser dart even once into the wrong part of a particular man's chest. In the heat of a moment, this might be a very difficult thing for a law enforcement officer to judge.

We are just hearing the beginning of this story, I believe.

Power, Beauty and Soul

TWENTYSOMETHING... By DAVID LION RATTINER

Victoria's Secret

It was a pretty exciting day at the Dan's Papers office. The sales manager here, Kathy Rae, came over to me and gave me some interesting news. "Dave, I just got an invite for a party where Victoria's Secret models are going to be."

I fell out of my chair.

"You what?"

"Yeah, do you want to go?"

"Hell yes I want to go. When is it?"

"It's tomorrow. You're invited."

Most males in life have an understanding that the Victoria's Secret super models are women that we will never meet, and also, more importantly, never date. The chances are zero percent. But here I was, heading to a party where there were going to be Victoria's Secret models. I was just given a chance. Kathy just gave it to me. What now?

I needed to figure out how I was going to act and what I was going to wear. My plan was to bring a guitar, girls love that, and also to put a surfboard on my car. I also planned on acting totally unimpressed that I was talking with a Victoria's Secret model, while at the same time being mysteriously quiet and wearing sunglasses. Let's not forget to wear dark sunglasses.

I needed to get in shape, fast. I started doing pushups in the office. My friend Christian, who works here, asked what I was doing. "I'm getting in shape for the Victoria's Secret party."

"You should bring a guitar with you."

"I'm all over it already."

"Are you going to say you have a girlfriend?"

This is a tough one. Sometimes women want you more when you say you have a girlfriend, but then at the same time, you are ruining the chances of asking them out and having them say yes, because you look like a two-timer.

"I haven't figured that one out yet," I said.

"I'd tell them that you do. In fact, I'd tell them all about how great she is and make them jealous."

"You might be on to something."

"I mean, they are Victoria's Secret models. They have heard it all. Guys treat them like they are from outer space. Just act like you don't give a crap."

I was prepared for my journey.

The party was mid-day at this absolutely gorgeous estate. I'm not going to tell you where, for reasons you will learn later. I got there at noon and saw some of the models doing a photo shoot. I found a woman that looked important.

"Hi, I'm from Dan's Papers."

"So?"

"Oh, well, I thought that I was here for a party of some kind."

"Ummm. No, we are doing a shoot."

"Oh..."

"You really can't be here."

"No, no, I was invited here. I'm a writer and was supposed to cover this party."

"It's not a party. It's a photo shoot. There is a bunch of people over there you can talk to. I don't know what they are doing here. I don't want you playing any music with that guitar. You're going to need to be quiet. I didn't even know there was a party here. If I did, we wouldn't have done this shoot."

"Wait, wait, please. Can you just tell the models that I DO have a girlfriend?"

"What?"

I walked over to the front of the estate, located right on the ocean, it was insanely, insanely gorgeous. Then I met about ten real estate brokers. I was at an open house for this estate. I learned it was almost six acres, with +600 feet of oceanfront. It has five houses, a three-car garage and a stable. It's awesome, surrounded by a nature preserve. The cost is forty million dollars. Turns out it was the real estate broker that invited me will be there.

Alessandra Ambrosio

down to the "Victoria's Secret party."

So here's the deal.

Since my dreams of hooking up with a Victoria's Secret model have been completely destroyed because of this open house, I'm a little upset. But I will do this.

If you are interested in seeing this estate and buying it (it's ridiculously awesome) you can call me and then when you buy it, I'll get part of the commission by working something out with the broker. And then, on this glorious day, I will throw one heck of a party. And I can promise you, Victoria's Secret models ates currently enrolled while Southampton College in 43 years graduated 11,000 students. Stony Brook is the nation's second largest incubator of Intel talent and it is ranked #136 in the world out of 8300 universities. It is also ranked one of the 100 best values in higher education by Kiplinger's Personal Finance. With an average tuition of $4350 for a New York State resident and a little more than $10,000 a year for an out-of-state resident it will beckon many students from the East End of Long Island who could not afford the $20,000 plus yearly fees charged by Long Island University. Stony Brook also offers wonderful amenities to its students, such as good, tasty, fresh, nutritious food from its food service and cable TV connections and Internet access from all its dorms. It is believed that this tradition will be continued on the renovated Southampton Campus.

Dr. Kenny pledged that Stony Brook would move as quickly as possible to reopen the campus and make it habitable after being closed for almost two years. But Dr. Kenny stressed "it will take time to rehabilitate the Dorms and finish the new Library that was left incomplete when the college was closed almost two years ago. Patience is the keyword for making all the changes expected by the community. Even the simple changing of the name on the front gate cannot be accomplished until ownership of the campus is transferred. That is another reason that there has been no advertising for the fall semester. No student recruitment efforts can be mounted until the transfer of ownership has been completed."

But a newly minted "Writers Conference" will take place on the campus this summer, from July 26th thru July 30 with the keynote address to be delivered by E.L. Doctorow and a special evening with Alan Alda co-sponsored with the Stony Brook Film Festival. In addition, Robert Reeves will be back to hold it all together with a stellar cast of characters to keep you in rapt attention. There will be no

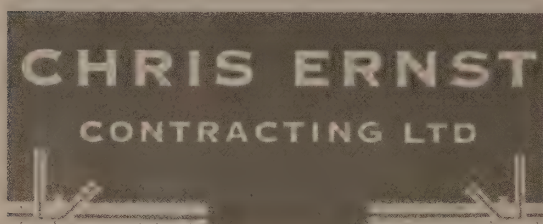

Book Fair this year and no "All for the Sea" concert. But Dr. Kenny has stated that they are planning to bring some live music to the campus this summer in the person of the Emerson String Quartet.

Dr. Kenny's 12-year reign as the "Steel Magnolia" will stand her in good stead as she takes on the formidable task of bringing the various Southampton communities, the alumni, the entrenched interests, and a new student community together to create this reinvigorated Campus.

There inevitably will be comparisons between the old and the new and there will be some that are kind and some not so kind. There will also be the specter of Long Island University hovering in the background for as much as three years while they continue to run their greatly reduced "Graduate Campus," radio station and Continuing Education Dept. for up to three years on the grounds of Stony Brook Southampton.

Dr. Kenny has promised that one of the first acts to be performed after Stony Brook receives possession of the campus will be to unlock the front gates. Many of the alumni have expressed great dismay at the sight of the shuttered and padlocked gates. It will be reassuring to one and all to see the gates swing open and the unsightly padlocks removed and shipped back to Long Island University.

New (continued from page 39)

Montauk Hwy. location of the former Gin Lane, which once operated as the Deerfield Inn, which prior to that was I Santi and before that Il Molina.

If you're on Main Street in Sag Harbor and looking for a steak at Jeff & Eddie's, you'll walk into a Cajun-fest and the soon-to-be launched Mumbo Gumbo, courtesy of the man who is eating the Hamptons — Ed "Jean Luc" Kleefield (JL East, JLX Bistro, and Madame Tong's). Before Jeff & Eddie's was Phao, and before Phao was Citron. And before Citron it was a place to get whale oil (kidding). And don't go into the Harborfront Deli for a roast beef hero. Rather, go there to get your fix of Golden Pear Café goodies. The Sag Harbor Pear just opened last week and owner Keith Davis now can boast five Pears. He's not a boastful guy despite the fact that St. Martin's just published his cookbook!

Over in East Hampton they really air out their laundry or so it seems. Leif Hope decided not to renew the lease to the folks who brought The Laundry to the East End back in 1980. So he opened Leif Hope's Restaurant at that location on Race Lane. So The Laundry folks signed a lease at the former Farmhouse (on Rte 27 — I mean Pantigo Lane) just east of the village. Of course everyone knows that the Farmhouse was actually the Purple Cow for about a minute last year but was really known for years as the venerable Spring Close House. Until it became Jack Straw's and then Violets. (Item: Two people were seen peering around The Laundry's new location last week looking for how to get in to wash their clothes. True story.)

We hear that there'll be a new restaurant where O'Malley's used to be. And it will be way fun. No, seriously, it's called Wei Fun. Chinese food. Get it? Mary Jane's which used to be Il Monastero has ceased to operate as a restaurant and will now house a financial services concern.

On Three Mile Harbor Road in Springs, a place called Harbor Bistro replaces Riccardo's, which replaced Bostwick's, which moved to Gann Road. Before Riccardo's, it was called The Watermark Café, and before that it was the Monterey Seafood Grill and Bar. And way back when, it was Little Rock Lobster but for the longest time it was the Sea Wolf. Remember?

Kitchen confidential: there is a new restaurant that occupies a location that was never a restaurant to anyone's recollection except for many, many, many years ago. It's called the Meeting House over in Amagansett Square.

And finally en route to Montauk, you'll find three institutions: The Clam Bar, Lunch (aka Lobster Roll) and Cyril's. They haven't changed a bit. But there's a new place called 27 Lobster and Surf Shack. Last year it was Napeague Stretch. Before that it was Ocean Grillfish. Before that it was the Pig n Whistle. Before that it was Sharkey's. Before that, I forget. One thing: they say they'll offer 1 1/4 lbs. lobsters for $9.95. At those prices, we will surely see them again next year!

Two 55-foot glass mosaic murals and a mosaic skywell by Sag Harbor artist Roy Nicholson are now being installed in the Gold Line portal at Union Station in Los Angeles. Mr. Nicholson, an emeritus professor of art at Long Island University, was awarded the public art commission by the Los Angeles Metropolitan Transportation Authority in June 2005. He also has a pair of mosaic murals in Hicksville's Long Island Rail Road station.

Only that doesn't really mean anything, because the race people never got her name, either. So technically, I beat her. That Potatohampton is one heck of a race. I RULE!

A list of all runners and their times is posted on the front door of Dan's Papers and also on our website, www.danspapers.com.

Dan's Papers would like to thank the following:

Our race coordinator Joan Gray, who brought all the elements together so the runners would have a wonderful Potatohampton experience. From The Bridgehampton Child Care and Recreation Center, Silvia Freedy, her daughter, and Brenda Pinckney, Gloria Harris, Alberta Davis and Fay Gholson, members of the Board of Directors all helped. So did Leslie Marine, a Coordinator for Health Corps, and her sister Kristen Marino. Stephen Phillips was a volunteer for Health Corp. Patty Wojewocki was there to support her sister who was so proud of her time, completing the race as a walker in just one hour.

We also appreciate the support of a sponsor Bridgehampton National Bank. Abbco Electric donated the generator for the timer, the tent was supplied by Empire Tent Rentals and Event Planning of Westhampton, American Home Mortgage had water for the runners at the Start/Finish Line. Care Bears had a big basket of goodies for the winner.

Hampton or Un-Hampton, You Choose!

Every charming town in the Hamptons this past Memorial Day weekend was jam-packed with people buzzing in and out of the fabulous shops, restaurants and nightclubs. Gillian, Lydia and Amanda Hearst along with R. Couri Hay PR, successfully kicked off summer this past weekend by co-hosting an exhibition for painter Wanda Murphy's latest collection entitled, "In Memory of You" at the Ezair Gallery, in Southampton. The chosen few moved next door to Nellos for a private dinner, al fresco. Afterwards, for the first time ever, guests were welcomed into Nellos Lounge. The intimate after dinner space is now officially open, and boasts a wild display of photographs taken by The Duchess of York, Sarah Ferguson, who documented a recent excursion on an African Safari. The vivid photographs are breathtaking and available for purchase. All of the proceeds will benefit Children In Crisis. There is no doorman! No cover charge! This is very Un-Hampton. And, for easy access, just make sure you say hello to general manager Andre Cortas, Alex Clavel, or Rhino. Mina Cekic, along with other house DJs, will get the party started every weekend.

Attention all Rachael Ray fans, and who isn't? You may want to see if there are any tickets left for this Saturday's annual PONY event to benefit the Maryhaven Center of Hope, at the Wolffer Estate Vineyard. Rumor is Rachael and her rock star hubby, John Cusimano, are on the list of confirmed guests. Rachael and John will most likely be seated next to good friend Mario Batali, who is being honored with the 2006 Recipient Pride of New York Award.

After seeing it first hand, East Hampton this summer is starting to feel a bit like Fifth Avenue, especially with storefronts like Gucci moving in. M Salon owner Maryann Campo, doesn't mind. Regulars like Donna and Gabby Karan and Nora Ephron can stop by for a blow-out 7 days a week, since M Salon extended their hours to include Sundays. Doggies are welcome, but please leave that snooty city attitude at the door!

Speaking of city attitude, that will get you nowhere at The Stephen Talkhouse in Amagansett, and owner Peter Honerkamp intends to keep it that way. Peter told me, "What people are attracted to is our Un-Hampton feel. Everyone is comfortable here." This coming Saturday, June 3rd, singer/songwriter Suzanne Vega performs live, and her husband, Paul Mills, and their daughter will be singing along in the audience. Get ready to hear some of her classic hits along with several brand new songs from her up-coming album. Vega, who has a home in Amagansett and isn't the only superstar in the family, told me, "My brother Matt is the local Striped Bass fishing champion." Go to www.stephentalkhouse.com to purchase tickets.

Until next week-Life is short, you only live once, so party on!

are a good negotiator."

"So eventually I just had to buy his house. And I've been there ever since."

"What do you like to do in the Hamptons?" I asked. "Oh, I like to have a bunch of friends over for dinner and we barbecue on the deck. I can't look hard enough or long enough at the sunset over the water. I just really enjoy the house. I read a lot. I take in the surroundings. I take in that marvelous Hamptons environment. It's almost like putting on a jacket. I play golf and tennis and I have a sea-do which I run around in and I feel like a kid on it."

"Tell me about the time in 1987 you got fired," I said, motioning to the framed front page of the N.Y. Daily News on the wall. It read: JOHN ROLAND FIRED.

Roland laughed. "Actually, I got suspended, not fired. That was during the Koch administration. The mayor had gotten this idea that one way to deal with the homeless on the street was to have this psychiatry bus drive around town. He staffed it with a doctor and a nurse and they'd go around interviewing these homeless people and if they felt they were completely out to lunch they would try to persuade them to come in the bus and be brought to a shelter.

"One of the people that Koch's psychiatry bus had brought in was a woman named Billy Boggs and she made a big stink about it and told the ACLU about it and they defended her right to live on the sidewalk and so they had to release her.

"This was only a few blocks from my house and I thought, 'How upside down was that?'"

"I went over with a crew and I had a conversation with her. I told her I had often seen her there because I came by on my way to work and she said, 'Well, then you know I'm not crazy.'"

"I said, 'How can you say that? I give you money and sometimes you take it and sometimes you light a match and set it on fire and sometimes you just run out in the middle of the street and urinate on it. And you're talking to yourself all the time.'"

The conversation went on like this over the air and there were a lot of phone calls, most of them not very kind to John Roland.

"They suspended me until they could see which way the wind was blowing," he said. "A few days after that, when the whole thing calmed down and a lot of people came to my defense, they reinstated me.

"Among other things, I knew I could escape from it and come out to Westhampton."

For all these years, John Roland has been a high profile celebrity in the Hamptons in the summertime. In 2002, after playing in the Artists and Writers Softball Game in East Hampton, he went to a party in Southampton where he met Joanna Sokalski, an attorney and CPA who is the CEO of a private investment firm in Manhattan. The following year they were married.

In 2004, after 35 successful years with the Fox Network, John Roland retired. He spends much of his time in Westhampton Beach, but he and his wife also maintain the apartment in Manhattan. They can often be found having dinner at Elaine's, which is not far from their apartment in town. John has continued, since leaving Fox, to be a popular public speaker in the Hamptons. He has served as Master of Ceremonies at literally dozens of fundraising events in the Hamptons over the years. These include the Southampton Hospital Benefit, Save the Seals, the American Cancer Society Gala, East End Hospice and the Family Counseling Fundraiser.

Now John Roland has announced his candidacy for Mayor of Westhampton Beach. The vote is on June 16. Frankly, John Roland would be an excellent choice for this office.

"What would you do if you were Mayor?" I asked.

"I'd put forward a plan to revitalize Main Street. Main Street is certainly nicer than it was before. But we need a sewer system. Currently, you cannot have any more restaurants on Main Street because all we have are cesspools and drywells. This is from another era. We need a sewer district, and when we get it we will also be able to develop more of the village down by the Marina. I hope to build a reflection pool near the Marina. Currently people are barely aware that Main Street is right next to a body of water. I would have the reflection pool become an ice skating rink in the winter. And I would create in town a new park for toddlers."

The Sheltered Islander By Sally Flynn

Sheltered Islander #401

"There's a million stories in the naked city..."

I went to The Dory to celebrate my 400th column last week. I had their incredible stuffed clams. Jack always makes them with clam pieces big enough to actually see. I was knockin' back Shirley Temples with three cherries like there was no tomorrow — because danger is my middle name....

I love meeting new people. Ed and Dave were the two new people (both very handsome) I met at The Dory that night. They are contractors, and as I do with nearly every one I meet, I asked them to tell me a funny story.

Ed related how he had this guy that worked for him once upon a time. I don't recall the guy's name so I'll call him James because I hate the name James. It's a bad luck name for me. All the James' I have ever met, save one with red hair, have been bad luck for me and created havoc in my life. I finally decided a few years ago that God created the name James just for me, as a way to tag and identify men I should avoid. When I meet men named James, I picture them surrounded with orange caution cones, then I get away from them as fast as I can. I don't know if Ed's worker was named James, but he might as well have been because he was bad news.

So back to the story. Hard worker, reliable, all was well with James, it seemed, until one day. James had a minor electrical problem so he called Ed on the chance that Ed had enough electrical knowledge to solve the problem, which it happened he did. James was so thrilled that he made Ed his expert for everything. He called Ed for every problem he had, great and small; electrical, plumbing, computer, women, choosing lotto numbers, everything.

We've all known someone like that at least once in our lives. Someone who has made us their expert and annoyed us to death with the minutiae of their lives. Killing them is out of the question because they are usually pretty social and someone would miss them. You don't want to hurt their feelings, but in the end you have to tell them that you have a brain tumor that grows from the sound of their voice, or move out of state in the middle of the night.

Yes, James drove Ed to distraction. But one night was the coup de grace. James had purchased a statue of the Madonna for his mother. The statue was in the yard and James was having trouble getting the Holy Mother to light up, so who did he call? Ed. Ed the all knowing.

"Did you check the wiring, James? Is it frayed anywhere?"

"No, wiring's good."

"Are the connections wet? Are the plugs lying in damp grass?"

"Nope. Plugs are above ground. Everything's dry but she's still not lighting up."

"Okay, did you check your fuse box?"

"No."

"Alright. Go to the fuse box and just to be sure, slowly flip each switch back and forth."

"Okay, but hang on, I gotta put new batteries in my flashlight."

"Oh, the fuse box is in a dark location?"

"No, all the lights are off."

"All the lights in your house?"

"No, all the lights on the block. I called the power company a little while ago, power should be back on in a few hours."

I can't relate the words Ed spoke to James next. But they were not nice words. The diatribe ended with Ed telling James never to call him again. Then, right at the end of Ed's yelling — the Madonna lit up in the yard! Ed told me, "I couldn't believe it! The guy took it as some kinda sign that I was his mentor for life."

Never mind the naked city. There's a million stories right here on the naked island...

The Street Painting Festival Rocks

Riverhead Brings In A Crowd To Enjoy Artwork On Pavement

By Annemarie Davin

This past Sunday, a rainbow of colors flowed down Main Street in Riverhead as the 10th Annual Riverhead Community Mosaic Street Painting Festival took place. This annual event happens every Memorial Day weekend and is organized by the East End Arts Council. The festival is usually held on the Peconic Riverfront but this year it was held on East Main Street between Roanoke Avenue and East Avenue as well as on the ground of the East End Arts Council.

The festival had many talented artists, ranging in all age groups. In the kids corner, one young artist had his toy horse in front of him as his subject to draw. This type of drawing is known as composition or figure drawing. I was impressed to see someone so young already using this technique.

One artist I was particularly impressed with was local artist, Sheri Egert. Her choice of colors were quite breathtaking and the attention to detail made it seem like the woman in her drawing was about to come to life and pop up off the street. This talented 18 year old girl has been drawing since she was a very little. She already has had her artwork on display and in fact, has been hired by several people who want murals painted in their homes. Keep your eye out for Ms. Egert because I expect that she will be someone who we will be seeing a lot of in the future. Her sponsor was the Riverhead Free Library.

All of the street painting squares were sponsored by businesses that donated $75 to $300 for the sponsorship and had their business name or dedication above each square.

Funds raised at the festival support scholarship opportunities for students at the EEAC Community School of the Arts.

There were other activities at this event, including a storytelling tent sponsored by the Riverhead Free Library, where I listened to John "Two Crows" Ginart (one of the story tellers) tell a story while curious children listened intently. There were also some great sounds from area musicians as they performed on stage as part of Eastenders' Musicians Showcase that was held on the Riverhead Showmobile on East Main Street. There were vendor booths including one from Make A Wish Foundation and the Atlantis Aquarium.

It was one heck of a day on the North Fork!

OVER THE BARREL...

with Lenn Thompson

Ripeness

As you've no doubt already heard, many vineyards lost some of their red wine crop last fall as the East End was pummeled with record rainfall. Unfortunately, Palmer Vineyards was one of the hardest hit, losing almost all of their reds — so much so that their 2005 red wines were made using grapes from the Pacific Northwest.

The rain was very brutal for every vineyard at the end of the season. It was also very discouraging considering that the weather last season was absolutely perfect for growing grapes, except for the very end of the season. However, wines this year did turn out to be good thanks to the outstanding skill that the North Fork winemakers have learned through experience practice.

Because most of our area's white wine grapes were harvested before the deluge, the dry, warm growing case of Palmer Vineyards 2005 Gewürztraminer ($17), the floral-perfumed aromas and flavors really overpower everything else. The aromas are suggestive of a rose garden with only subtle sweet spice notes. This vintage tastes drier than the 2004 but the 2005s aggressive floral flavors are dominant.

As noted in this column previously, 2005 was a great year for North Fork Sauvignon Blanc so Palmer Vineyards' 2005 Sauvignon Blanc ($17) was a welcome finish to the tasting. The aromas you'd expect with the variety are there — fresh cut grass and herbs, lime and grapefruit — and the fore palate is an impressive intermingling of fruit, herbaceousness and acidity. That initial burst of flavor fades a bit too quickly, but this is a pleasant, if simple, wine to serve with a variety of seafood or salads. The wine is an absolute delight and is a great representation of a great North Fork wine.

To buy these wines, visit the tasting room in Aquebogue or visit www.palmervineyards.com where you can also check out their always-busy event calendar.

season expresses itself quite well in many of the 2005 whites I've tasted. Bright fruit that tends more toward the tropical than usual is common and the intensity of flavor is impressive, even if, in some cases, acidity is down.

Four recent white wine releases from Palmer Vineyards are competitive when tasted against other wines from the North Fork's 2005 vintage.

Palmer Vineyards 2005 White Riesling ($17) presents an appealing nose of lightly floral aromas coupled with lemon and lime zest. Light bodied and off dry, the flavors are straightforward with citrus the primary player while light acidity balances the gentle residual sweetness. Sure, the tense interplay of sugar, fruit and acid found in top-flight Riesling just isn't there, but this is a well-made, easy-drinking introduction to the variety. It was my favorite of their new releases and seems a good foil for sweet, just-from-Peconic Bay scallops. If it were priced like last year's bottling, $14, it would be a much better deal however. However at just three dollars more, I shouldn't be complaining.

Gewürztraminer isn't for everybody. Its exotic, perfumed citrus character is quite unique and in the

Dan's North Fork

When a long established restaurant, such as Coeur des Vignes closes, it is always sad, especially for the regular patrons. The good news is that The North Fork Table & Inn has just opened in the same premises and is fantastic. Chef Gerry Hayden brings his experience of running such Manhattan notables as Aureole and Amuse. And his wife, Claudia Fleming, was the acclaimed pastry chef from Gramercy Tavern as well as the winner of the James Beard Pastry Chef of the Year Award in 2000. Together, with front of the house managers and co-partners, Michael and Mary Mraz, who also are veterans of Manhattan's top restaurant scene, they make a formidable partnership. This was shown by their immediate willingness to allow a review on the Saturday night of Memorial Day weekend, just three days after their opening!

The interior of the restaurant has been totally gutted and restyled and now is bright and elegantly furnished in shades of beige. The cooking style is proudly listed as American, and the first read of the menu, with its stylish seasonal cover, was exciting and immediately brought thoughts of "everything sounds wonderful" and "this is going to be a very hard choice." However, Gerry features a "Chef's five course tasting menu" that really solved our problem and gave us a great overview of the offerings.

Kelly, our charming waitress, is studying Film at NYU and she and her colleagues showed that they have already been well trained. Wines by the glass are poured at the tableside from the bottle and cutlery is changed for each course. Water and bread service were also very prompt. The room was virtually full by the time we finished at around seven and even though, as with any new endeavor, there are bound to be glitches at times, the dining room buzzed and everyone looked happy. As they should be. Our first taste of the smooth potato and wild leek soup with hickory smoked bacon, topped with a slight foam of black pepper sour cream was fabulous. (This was not part of the tasting menu but we couldn't resist a taste). Our first course was another taster, this time of sushi grade local fluke marinated in red grapefruit, where the exceptionally fresh taste of the fish was enhanced by the citrus marinade. Then the mood changed with a deep tasting risotto served with local asparagus and Parmigiano Reggiano. This was cooked to perfection and is bound to become one of the favorite dishes. Maryland soft shell crabs were plump and juicy and the accompanying mix of asparagus, morels and balsamic brown butter really added something extra to the inherent delicacy and taste of the crabs. We had also seen by now that Gerry's style is very much based on bringing out and complementing the taste of excellent quality products, and not to use over rich or cloying sauces. The main course of rack of Colorado lamb was just to die for. Unusually, we did not specify the degree the lamb we preferred to be cooked, and when it arrived, it looked rare, but proved to be exquisitely juicy and tasty and really melted in the mouth and was, without doubt as good as any lamb we have been privileged to eat around the world. The accompanying potato gratin and mix of melted leeks and chanterelles was mouthwateringly good. Again, this dish will prove to be a standout on the menu.

Finally, we came to what, for so many, is the moment in a meal to live for, the arrival of dessert. Claudia's strawberry shortcake rendition and a magnificent warm chocolate soufflé with home made coffee ice cream accompanied by a large strong espresso coffee brought a memorable evening to a reluctant close

Dinner is served each night, except Tuesday, starting at five. The wine list is still being finally assembled but already has a good representation of Long Island wines. They also will feature specialty beers. Appetizers range from $10 to 14; Entrées from $24 to $36 and desserts are $8 to 9. The Chef's tasting menu is $68 per person and the entire table has to participate in this.

Based on our tastings, The North Fork Table and Inn is rapidly going to become one of those places you must visit from both South and North Forks and even from the further parts of this region if you really enjoy imaginative, well cooked and well presented food; so get in and make your reservations fast!

Come To The Pig Roast

The 12th Annual North Fork Spring Pig Roast Is This Saturday

By Whitney L. Gallo

The 12th Annual North Fork Spring Pig Roast Picnic is going to be held this Saturday at Pindar Vineyards in Peconic. Not only is this one of the best events on the North Fork, it also benefits a worthy cause, the East End Hospice.

There will be something for each member of your family at the picnic. For the children, and those young at heart, there will be tons of entertainment. Two amusing clowns will be running around the property making various balloon novelties. For those guests with energy to burn, Bounce Health will be at the picnic with their huge blown up jumping attractions. All participants can enjoy face painting as another option to enhance their fun and games. And make sure you do not leave home without your dancing shoes because D.J. Trevor Davison will be playing the hottest tunes to dance the afternoon away.

What would a picnic be without great food? To fix your craving, Stuart's Seafood Market from Amagansett will be roasting three pigs. If you thought this was an easy job, think again. The chef spends around 10 hours preparing these pigs to a golden perfection before serving them at the picnic. More good food will be provided by eight local delis.

In addition to the fresh roasted pig, there will be the traditional picnic potato salad, baked beans, corn bread, hamburgers, hot dogs, mixed salad, and summer desserts. To quench your thirst, you will be able to choose from the wide selection of wine, Pindar of course, beer and soda.

The East End Hospice describes this Pig Roast Picnic not as a typical fundraiser but more as a family event designed to increase awareness on the North Fork. The friendly staff of the Hospice wants to show that they care about the community and are available for families in need of support and care. The East End Hospice is a non-for-profit organization that has been serving the twin forks of Long Island since 1991. Their team of skilled professionals and trained volunteers provide an individualized plan of care for terminally ill patients, their families and loved ones. One of the outstanding unspoken features of the Hospice is that no one is denied care based on the inability to pay. This service would not be available without the help of the community. The East End Hospice also hosts a 5-day summer camp for children who have experienced the loss of a parent or close relative. Camp Good Grief is located on Shelter Island, to provide these children the opportunity to learn to share their pain and to have fun at the same time. Your support goes a long way. For each and every dollar raised by the East End Hospice, eighty-seven cents goes directly to patient care.

Rain or shine, get up, get out, and help support this great cause.

Nothing is more enjoyable than spending a gorgeous summer day at a pig roast picnic which helps benefit your community. See you there!

The North Fork Spring Pig Roast Picnic will be held at Pindar Vineyards in Peconic on Saturday, June 3 from 4 to 7 p.m. Tickets are $25 for adults and $10 for children. Memories, fun, food and beverages are included in the ticket price.

Some Very Interesting Art

The Sirens' Song Gallery In Greenport Has A Great Art Show

By Thomas Sarc

The Sirens' Song Gallery has an exhibit of various works by artist Caroline Waloski (www.carolinewaloski.com) located at 516 Main Street in Greenport. The grand opening was Saturday and will run until June 26. The show is entitled "Creatures of the Deep and the Shallows" and contains the prints of Caroline and artists from the Manhattan Graphics Center.

The artwork that is there is incredibly interesting and should be checked out. The gallery is a very welcoming gallery that you feel immediately comfortable in and automatically become consumed by the impressive artwork. Everyone that works there is exceptionally knowledgeable of the art which makes for a very nice visit. The gallery is an excellent addition to Greenport's already very exciting and beautiful business landscape.

On July 1, there will be a new exhibit with a reception. The exhibit will be entitled "Natural Selection" and will feature two artists, one a sculptor and the other a collagist.

The Sirens' Song Gallery was conceived with the purpose of introducing a new arena in which to become familiar with the world of prints. It will be a working studio. Through exhibits, demonstrations and salon style talks, Caroline hopes to peak the collectors' interest in printmaking. The gallery will exhibit her personal vision and the works of her friends who are contemporary artists working in the mediums of etching, lithography, silk screen, woodblock, linocut, photo etching, monoprint and computer generated prints.

Prints are a form of original art perfected by the Japanese. The Sirens' Song will present prints in the form of books, 3D sculptural images, items that are functional as well as flat ready to frame art. Caroline is hoping to exhibit exciting, experimental and traditional works in various forms of multiples.

The images created by Caroline Waloski reflect her experiences as a child, a daughter, a sister, a lover, a wife, a mother and a breadwinner. They are the reflections and projections of being a woman. Her works are haunted by ghosts, demons or spirits that are fostered by outside pressures of social propriety and familial worldly relationships. They simultaneously distill the illusionary and the actual. The borders between fantasy and reality blur. The visuals confronts the world with the wonder of everything seen and felt, along with a mysterious other.

The iconography of her work seems best suited to multilayered visuals. She primarily works in the intaglio printmaking process, using etching, aquatint, chine-collé, blind embossing, and metallic mica mono-print techniques to achieve a visual as complex as an emotional response.

Caroline has studied printmaking and painting at the Cooper Union, SVA, and the Pratt Graphics Center. She lives and works in a small seaside village on the North Fork of Long Island. Her previous studio was located in Harlem, always located near or between natural waters. The forces of the tides and the moon influence her work. For the past fifteen years she has been a working artist and board member of the Manhattan Graphics Center.

Caroline Waloski has been exhibiting in the United States and internationally since 1988. She was one of the artists from the Manhattan Graphics Center invited to exhibit in Poland on July 4, 2002, in a solidarity celebration of the 226th anniversary of the US Independence. Other exhibitions include the Royal Society of Printmakers, the Poole Printmakers in the UK, the Delta Gallery in Paris and the Erlin Gallery in Hungary, among many others.

The work of Caroline Waloski is in the permanent collections of the Cooper Hewitt Museum, the Library of Congress, the NY Public Library and the NY Historical Society. Her work is both mysterious as it is beautiful and definitely worth the trip to see.

book review: the last proud gallop by gerald f. sweeney

Just when I believed the world of Jazz Age fiction was bound, sealed and shelved long ago, I received a parcel in the mail with a note attached. It read:

"As threatened, please find a copy of my novel, The Last Proud Gallop, by Gerald F. Sweeney."

And then, on the next page, a throwback to Fitzgerald's Great Gatsby informed me that the stories of the Lost Generation were not obsolete. "In joyful remembrance of all green lights across all bays," Sweeney writes.

The literature that came out of the Lost Generation is unforgettable – all the parties, the expatriates, moral wandering, loveless sex and impossible love. The Last Proud Gallop is one of these stories: a love story between the hyper erotic firebrand called Pamela and a Princeton war hero, quasi-political-reformer and polo champion named Tad Hancock. It is also about what it means to be a leader, how to inherit one's legacy and how to love, all on the backdrop of cocktails, croquet and polo playing in the Hamptons.

The narrative begins in 1919, or as Sweeney puts it, "a year of speculations and seldom-sober-sallies into the hoopla that followed... A time when no one knew how to behave."

After five years, one war and a world revolution, our teenage nation emerged into the Lost Generation. In the years that followed, we saw Victorian standards upstaged by the dawning of the flapper. It was the wasteland after the war and the emergence of the first un-syncopated beats of jazz.

Much of the book, and the bulk of their love fit, is set in Southampton where the rich were throwing parties, mocking Prohibition. It's a society of tight-skinned, sun-tanned faces revealing generations of impeccable breeding. Our characters are among the uppercrust of old world aristocracy, people with names like Tad, Hazie Hawe, Del, and Ashley.

Among them is Tad Hancock, our hero, and his bunch. Tad's status is telling of the time, when a man could, "on the basis of wealth, polo-playing, air heroics and a good row of white molars" emerge as a national figure.

Tad and our narrator, Mike, are part of a thinly spread group of political reformers – young Republicans pouring beer in pewter tankards and gathering in wooden rooms to forge a new national ideology.

The object of Tad's love is Pamela, the fiery courtesan figure who distracts the political reformer from his path. She is the sexually-liberated woman of her time, the embodiment of passion and detachment simultaneously. Like all alluring and romantic "lost" women characters, Pamela has a private melancholy. She shudders, for example, "when the cold in her meets the warm outside."

At some point it becomes the story of the difference between the way men and women love. On one side of the love spectrum is Pamela's hurling chaos and on the other Tad's energy "coming down a chain." Some might say this model is built on the standard woman/man archetypes: Her passion vs. his reason. Regardless, the division between them is authentic, carefully explored and as a result, you feel it. Though it reads a bit overdone at times, sounding like a flowery prose poem, the dialogue is strong and distinct and some of the lines illuminating.

A particular sentimentality was triggered in me as Sweeney muses about the East End of Long Island, where he has lived on and off throughout his life.

Take this lovely passage:

"Past the potato fields that separate New York City from the shore, the wealthy rumble towards the sea in vintage automobiles."

The birth and death of this love affair takes place out here, where Tad and Pamela are sun drenched on manicured lawns, spending days like drifting boats on becalmed seas. Sailboats, afternoon jaunts, steamed lobsters and straw hats, the Gatsby-type-decadence of fox trotting on perfect lawns – it all reads as real-to-life. Gerald Sweeney knows this world down to the most acute detail and has a refreshing perspective on our local area. He writes:

"Those who knew Southampton as children found solace in the simplicity of wind and sea. The new money crowd would defy that naturalness by lavishing the splendor of the city on their weekend places. Above, the sky, making no distinction of its own, smiled on all."

The Jazz Age is not merely a literary memory fastened to Fitzgerald's green light and Hemingway's misguided ex-pats. Although long gone, the hazy era reawakens in Sweeney's narrative with dynamic and dimensional characters with strong, timeless voices.

OVER THE RIVER AND THROUGH THE WOODS WITH KEN KINDLER

A Walking Tour of Sag Harbor Part I

On Sunday, Tony Garro of Southampton Trails Preservation Society led a "hike/walking tour" of Sag Harbor. This is one of Tony's favorite "hikes" and he leads it with some regularity. On this walk, you get to see historic Sag Harbor. There are many lovely hikes to take in the woods with STPS as well. Check www.hike-li.org for ongoing listings.

I parked on Long Wharf, where I met Tony who was very graciously providing me with a private walking tour this day. We walked back towards the windmill and headed east along Bay Street. The windmill that sits at the foot of the Wharf serves as an information center for visitors. The Wharf was the center of economic activity in Sag Harbor in 1770 when the first section of the 1000-foot wharf was built.

Tony normally begins his tour by the windmill. To get to the windmill, turn left onto Bay Street from Route 114. Public Restrooms (in a grey building right after the long brick building) are visible as soon as you make a left turn off Long Wharf.

Bay Street is actually man-made land. It stands now where the bay used to be. Marine Park is located between Bay Street and the water. Between 1800-1860 what is now Bay Street was filled with whaling ships. Tony pointed out a number of homes across from the harbor that were B and Bs; no, not bed and breakfasts, but rather "bars and brothels."

While we were walking, I was amazed at the lovely and varied chorus of bird song that seemed to come from every direction. Although we were walking in "town," Sag Harbor has the feel of a lovely walk in nature.

As we walked, we passed a plaque on Bay Street at the site of the first recorded settlement of Sag Harbor. At that time, it was named "Wegwaggonock" meaning "at the foot of the hill." Dirt from Turkey Hill was pulled down to fill in the Bay Street area. It was also used as ballast on the many whaling ships that sailed in and out of this busy port.

During WWI and WWII many war materials were manufactured in Sag Harbor. The Bliss Torpedo Co. manufactured torpedoes for the US Navy here. Now a whole complex of stores and businesses occupies this building. The Bliss Torpedo Testing Station Corner Stone, dated 1891-1925, can still be seen here. Grumman Corp. later occupied this space where it built parts for jets and components of the Lunar Excursion Module (LEM).

Many of the historical landmarks in Sag Harbor are private residences and may only be viewed from outside. The first residence we passed that was of historical interest was the Captain John Phillips house (located on 67 Bay Street). This was the home of the Phillips family from 1867-1947. The Captain was a renowned Sag Harbor schooner captain who ran sailing ships through the German blockades during WWI.

Tony and I then walked right onto the little-used road, Dering Road, where there are a couple of "half houses." They are three "bays" wide (the width of a window or a door) and have two windows and one door facing the street. The builders of these houses planned on buying the adjacent property and expanding the front of their homes to a normal width. The value of the adjacent land increased to the point where it was no longer affordable, so instead they built towards the back, forming long narrow structures.

Photoby Ken Kindler

Tony Garro by Memorial stone

We continued south on Dering Road and turned right onto Rysam Street. We were able to see the back of what was once the Conkling farmhouse, built around 1740, now incorporated into the Rysam-Sleight house. The Conklings were patriots during the Revolutionary War and the sons were privateer captains.

Between the buildings, Tony pointed out the back of the watchcase factory, built in 1881 by Joseph Fahys, at the corner of Washington and Division Streets. This building was bought by the Bulova Watch Company in 1937.

Heading south on Rysam Lane, we passed Love Lane off to our right, so called since it was once a popular trysting place for young lovers.

See next week's column for the conclusion of Walking Tour of Sag Harbor.

EAST END KID: SWEET CHARITY

BY EMILY HART POST

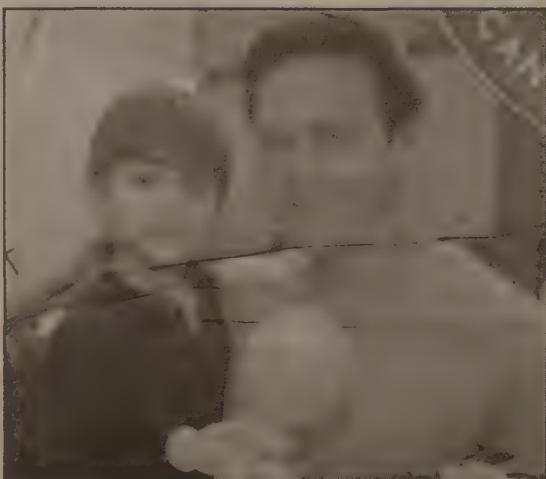

With a little help from Katlean de Monchy and David Post

Dad and I went to the Kids in Candyland event at Dylan's Candy Bar. I got good news as soon as I walked in. A bag to fill up with sweet goodies – Hurray! After the sugar rush I was ready for anything. I got to see my favorite magician, Magic Al and got a front row seat. He made me laugh so much that I came back for his second show. This party is for the benefit of Lenox Hill Neighborhood House and they raised over $70,000 to help children's programs in Manhattan. There was the family singing group Laughing Pizza, Magic Al, face painting, cookie decorating, story telling, lots of food, and characters like Dora the Explorer and Batman. I was afraid of Batman at first, but I found out that he is really a nice guy. It was a real fun event and we got cool goodie bags when we left.

This is the first of many alternate energy solutions that will be introduced to the East End. This product uses the installation of photovoltaic systems, which convert sunlight to electricity, to provide inexpensive green electricity. These solar thermal systems, which capture the sun's heat, work with modern plumbing systems to meet domestic hot water, pool heating and house heating requirements via passive thermal flooring.

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood In The Hamptons

Not since Cecil B. DeMille's bizarre, bilious, bible-boilings of sandals, swords and sex epics, has so much meant so little, as the current mercenary spin on biblical boiler plate, The Da Vinci Code, the movie adapted from the behemoth best selling novel whose saving grace is that it attempts to bolster feminine empowerment. It was expected to generate a great deal of controversial disputes – and it has! However, most of it is about Tom Hanks's hair. Is the mane a hair-weaving job or do those monkey glands actually work? His hair is almost as long as the movie.

At any rate, the movie maker's monkeying with the over-elaborate theological mumbo-jumbo, used to turn an average pulpy action thriller into a pretentious intellectual thematic page-turner, has not hurt the movie's crowd-gathering popularity. The weekend's box office was huge. This, despite the film being a cluttered, hiccuping, off and on, sputtering of shallow trivia. Well, as a wag said of the crowds at a despised movie producer's funeral, "If you give people what they want, they'll come out for it." Let's face it, the comedy RV, Barry Sonnenfeld's ode to dog doo-doo, has hung in on the charts for some time.

OK, here's a question: Did Jesus have sex with Mary Magdalene? No, you say? OK, wise guy, if he didn't, why did da Vinci paint her seated to the right of Jesus in The Last Supper, his wide-screen, letterbox mural – a 1498 docudrama, reenactment of the real thing as Leonardo saw it, "the establishment of the Sacred Feminine?" To get to the bottom of soul searching conundrums like this, buried by conspiratorial cover-ups, a professor of "symbolology," Robert Langdon, portrayed by Tom Hanks as a cold-fish, anagram and artifact, puzzled scholar, sort of Raiders of the Lost Ark researcher, will scout to dozens of colorful locations for the answers, but unlike Indiana Jones will not enjoy its dangers, at all. I don't know if you will, either. All the signs and symbols really don't add up to any intellectual excitement. The thrills have to fall back on the old action packages, that here are routinely done. Hanks, given the big-hair sexy-look, sidesteps any sparks that might have occurred with his constant companion on the crusade, Audrey Tautou as a police cryptologist whose grandfather has been murdered in the Louvre after dark. The old man's naked body was arranged as Leonardo's "Vitruvian Man." A pentagram was drawn on his chest with blood. Yikes, already with the symbols! It's a murder mystery.

Barely finishing a lecture, Hanks hoofed it over to the museum only to be accused of the murder by Paris police captain Bezu Fache, played by stubbly Jean Reno. Cute lil' Audrey is sure Grandpapa knew some Christianity-shaking secrets, which for a millenium had been hidden by the Catholic church to diminish the power of women linked to Goddess worship. And, there is Mrs. Jesus or whatever you want to call her, amidst the scattered field of interlocking clues, red and ripe herrings, and a fictitious cult outfit, the Priory of Sion, with dues paying members like Isaac Newton and da Vinci and possibly a few other weirdoes protecting the sacred secret. There's a self-flag-ellating albino (Paul Bettany) who's a stalking murderer. An important Catholic bishop (Alfred Molina) is winging his way into the fracas and the Professor and the Little Lady are on their way, hopscotching their way to the Holy Grail, which contains the keys to the solution. Poor Captain Bezu must be running into stragglers from Monty Python's search.

Screenwriter Akiva Goldsman and director Ron Howard (Cinderella Man and A Beautiful Mind) have copped-out and made Prof. Langdon an all-around skeptic, not sure that Christianity's been lying. Without his fervor (and sexiness) we have to turn to Ian McKellen's overacting feverishness for his major love – the study of the Grail. He enacts Sir Leigh Teabing, author Dan Brown's tip of the hat to writers of Holy Blood, Holy Grail used by Brown for research. Their names are Richard Leigh and Michael Baigout. Those two writers got on line to sue Brown for copyright infringement along with Umberto Eco, Robert Anton Wilson and Garth Ennis. And, why are so many others down on Dan Brown's writing syntax and sentence structure? He knew what folks wanted.

It would be nice to think The Da Vinci Code was striking a chord for women's equality, but the summer blockbuster audience was mostly given a mystery thriller. Like the novel's author, when he came to Yogi Berra's famous fork in the road – he took it. Literally.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award-winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmys and various film festivals. Sarah Halsey assists him.

MAYOR ED KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

I did not read Dan Brown's novel on which this film is based nor do I intend to read it. Many people who denounced the book and sought to put down the movie, directed by Ron Howard, smelled blood after the film's poor reviews at Cannes. I was rooting for its success but, sorry to say, the negative reviews were warranted.

The book probably explains more of the details, but the screenplay contains lots of holes and is occasionally difficult to follow. Tom Hanks, with his distracting long hair, gives one of his worst performances to date as the Harvard professor, Robert Langdon. Jean Reno, portraying Inspector Bezu Fache, does well and against type – he usually plays the criminal. Audrey Tautou, who reminds many of Audrey Hepburn, is no more than okay in her portrayal of French policewoman Sophie Neveu. The actor who dominates the film is Ian McKellen in his role as Sir Leigh Teabing.

Everyone knows the plot so I won't restate it. Some of the elements of the movie, particularly the relationship between Teabing's character and his manservant and plane pilot, Remy (Jean-Yves Berteloot), were reminiscent of a James Bond film. Fear was expressed by some that the Catholic Church should worry about the movie's impact on audiences. Not to worry. Although everyone acknowledges that the book and the film are works

Dave Evans' MINI - MOVIE REVIEWS

The Break-Up

What bitter irony that this, the film in which Jennifer Aniston finally gets to publicly flaunt her relationship with Vince Vaughn, should be overshadowed by the recent birth of Jolie-Pitt Jr. The film itself is perfectly inoffensive, charting the exploits of a couple who have broken up but both refuse to leave the house they share. Dispensable fluff, but cute nonetheless.

Peaceful Warrior

A successful athlete must learn from a wiser, older man about the real cost of success and competition, much new age philosophizing ponderously ensues. Nick Nolte stars as the cringingly-named Socrates, while Dan is played by Scott Mechlowicz, who has certainly come a long way since the ghastly Eurotrip but still has much to learn.

District B13

This directorial debut by cinematographer Pierre Morel comes to American screens nearly two years after its French premiere. Perhaps its tale of a Paris torn apart by gangs and riots has seemed a little too appropriate as of late but with a Luc Besson script (of La Femme Nikita and Leon fame) and some slick visuals, this is an engrossing urban adventure.

X-Men: The Last Stand

Maybe this is the great super-hero franchise.

Unlike Spiderman and Batman, the X-Men series has never allowed itself to get too bogged down in backstory, throwing another hyper-skilled mutant into the mix in seemingly every scene. There's anxiety among fans that director Brett Ratner will not be able to follow Bryan Singer's extraordinary lead, but with enough explosions and transformations, how can this go wrong?

The Da Vinci Code

What to say? The film of the absurdly successful book is directed by the ever-adequate (and rarely anything more) Ron Howard and stars America's favorite actor Tom Hanks as Robert Langdon, the Harvard professor of religious symbology who gets caught up in a religious conspiracy. If I told you not to go because the plot is dull and dumb and none of these people need more money, would it make any difference?

Cavite

A young man travels to the Philippines in the wake of his father's death only to discover that the remainder of his family has been kidnapped. When the kidnapper forces the man to commit terrorist acts to save his loved ones this all goes pear-shaped. Shot on a shoestring budget, the film has some incredible documentary-style footage of its location, but it would do better to leave the terrorism to Jack Bauer.

Over the Hedge

It's CGI-animal-adventure-with-celebrity-voiceovers time again, but this is a cut above the rest. The cast is predictably sparkling - from the ever-fantastic Alison Janney to Bruce Willis and, if that's your bag, faux-punk tweeny-bopper Avril Lavigne. But the real difference here is a smart plot, which sees a bunch of animals that realize the encroaching suburbs may allow them to become more bourgeois. An Inconvenient Truth

Al Gore is, for many, the eternal second-placer - the guy who dropped a really big ball. On the basis of this outing though, Gore is still a force to be reckoned with, bringing a coherent and intelligent analysis of the oncoming threats of global warming. It's gripping stuff, but it will be interesting to see if this somber, informative piece can float above the wave of summer blockbusters.

Poseidon

In this remake of the 1972 classic The Poseidon Adventure, director Wolfgang Petersen finds himself comfortably at sea once again, following his earlier hits The Perfect Storm and Das Boot. It's visually impressive stuff and nobody could deny Petersen's affinity and understanding of the sea, but the plot itself feels weak and unnecessary, manned by the dregs of the C-list.

of fiction, the real victim in the film is Opus Dei, the Catholic organization depicted as a cult of murderers. I would be angry if the Jewish Lubovicher sect was portrayed in such a sordid manner. Albinos, those born with a lack of skin pigmentation, may also be offended after seeing Paul Bettany's portrayal of Silas, the albino monk who flagellates himself and commits murder.

According to The Washington Post, The Da Vinci Code is estimated to have grossed $224 million worldwide, second to the $253 million debut of Star Wars: Episode III - Revenge of the Sith. For me, seeing the film was not a wasted evening, but it left much to be desired. But who knows, you may enjoy it.

review: quartet...by jan silver

Bay Street Theatre opened its fifteenth season with Ronald Harwood's slight and mildly amusing comedy Quartet. There are four very accomplished actors in this four-character play – Kaye Ballard, Paul Hecht, Simon Jones and Sian Phillips. Opera devotees and theatergoers fifty years and older will most appreciate the humor in this show.

The setting is the present in a British country house for retired opera performers. Three former stars, all old friends, meet up in the home's music room and start to discuss performing at the annual celebration of Giuseppe Verdi's birthday. The dialogue quickly reveals their personalities.

Ballard is Cecily Robson (called "Ceci"), a sweet, gentle, rotund alto who is kind to everyone, has never married and is slowly losing her memory. Paul Hecht is the marvelously crochety and lecherous Wilfrid Bond, a widower with a sharp mind and distinct anger towards the indignities of old age. His Wilfrid puts it right out there – "I have hated every minute of growing old!"

Simon Jones plays the quiet, intellectual, more private Reginald Paget who has always tried to live modestly and now feels "age helps one forget that which is best forgotten." However, Reg gets very agitated if he feels he's being treated unfairly.

Paul Hecht, Kaye Ballard, Simon Jones, Sian Phillips

When a new arrival enters the lives of the three sweet eccentrics, all four are gently forced to acknowledge their past, present and future. The catalyst is Jean Horton (Sian Phillips), a well-known diva with many marriages and two children who suddenly retired from singing in her early thirties.

Ms. Phillips, the distinguished Welsh-born actress best known to U.S. audiences for her portrayal of the imperious, scheming queen-mother to actor Derek Jacobi's Claudius in the popular BBC/PBS series I, Claudius, commands attention as soon as she enters. The four have a shared history – they are celebrated for singing the "Quartet" aria from Verdi's Rigoletto – and Reg and Jean were briefly married. Old scores must be settled as the four approach the evening of the Verdi celebration.

Ronald Harwood, author of many plays and screenplays including The Dresser, Being Julia and The Piano, has written Quartet so that each character has his/her solo, duet, trio and quartet moments. Jack Hofsiss directs the cast with a light touch and sensitivity. At the final preview performance attended, the comedy unfolds as a gentle ensemble piece.

Sound designer Tony Melfa does a fine job with tempting sound-bites of Verdi between acts and scenes right up to the finale, "Bella Figlia Dell'Amore" from Rigoletto. Troy Hourie's set of a music room in a country home, papered with old opera posters, is gracious, and Brian Nason's lighting makes it warm and inviting. Tracy Christensen's costumes tell us much about each character. Jim Carnahan and Stephen Kopel have selected a perfect cast for this little play.

Final performances of Quartet at Bay Street Theatre, Sag Harbor, are this Friday and Saturday, 8 p.m., Saturday matinee at 2 p.m., and Sunday at 7 p.m. Tickets ($45-60) are available at the box office (631-725-9500) or online at www.baystreet.org.

ART COMMENTARY With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"SECRET GARDENS" AT NABI GALLERY

The term "Secret Gardens" conjures up many meanings, namely references to varied artistic endeavors where the book, Secret Garden, serves as an original source, having been a movie and then, more recently, a Broadway play. The words may also possess a sexual connotation, an appropriate name for a porn shop, perhaps. And then there are actual gardens, particularly in England, that advertise luscious spaces with "secret gardens."

The current exhibit at New York's Nabi Gallery suggests none of these aspects, however, except in its "secret" location. Situated on the outskirts of Chelsea, it offers an unexpected, refreshing break from the busy street outside, the only gallery on its block. Its spaciousness and positive vibrations mirror a garden's geographical iconography.

While works by the exhibiting artists offer interpretations of a garden that may also be considered iconic, they essentially represent individual visions, which are both stylistically and thematically inherent to the artists' art form.

Rae Ferren's pieces, like "Garden Tales," are impressionistic/abstract views of places that exist in her imagination as well as in her memory. Her gardens recall when we would look over our own secret space, whether it was a real garden or a park or a neighbor's backyard. It's the one setting that was truly ours. Where dreams can be dreamed, where problems can be resolved, where butterflies and hummingbirds can perform just for us. Simply put, Ms. Ferren takes us back to our childhood, a precious place, both literally and figuratively.

Alex Russo's paintings are more abstract, yet the images are often discernable, nonetheless, whether they be figures or animals or environmental elements. Unlike Ms. Ferren's works, Mr. Russo's sources are ambiguous, derived from imagination, dreams, real experiences or myths. As we view his work, like "Lights of Cornwall," we get the impression that images are moving, appearing and disappearing the more we look at them.

This is no optical illusion, to be sure, but part of Mr. Russo's thematic thrust: Life is, in fact, composed of imagination, dreams, real experiences and myths, each coming and going as circumstances prevail. Or perhaps there is no logic to this process. Things just happen.

Megan Williamson's paintings come from a very different source, namely Chicago's hidden garden where she lives. They are abstracted as well, often focusing on a close-up view or detail with no context. David Lowe's realistic settings from Tuscany and Umbria are filled with specifics, too, but "Once Upon a Time in the West," for example, is a long view where the garden is seen in context to the house.

Cyril David's drawings provide a different view, his mixture of reality and a bit of Surrealism ("Lee in the Grape Arbor") becoming a potent celebration of the connection between humans and nature.

"Secret Gardens" will be on view at the Nabi Gallery (137 W. 25th Street) until June 17. Call 212-929-6063 for more information.

HONORING THE ARTIST: DANIEL POLLERA

In today's busy world, it should come as no surprise that the following interview with this week's cover artist, Daniel Pollera, took place on a cell phone as he went from chore to chore, taking care of business.

Q: What's your daily routine like, anyway? It combines business and art which has become common for you over the last several years.

A: Sometimes I paint for two hours in the morning. Sometimes I paint for two hours at night. But that's all the time I can afford for it. Then I answer messages, e-mails, inquiries.

Q: What kind of inquiries do you like best, besides the normal taking care of business ones?

A: I love it when I can help people. One woman from the Midwest said she'll be coming to this area and she wanted to visit the places where she could see my chairs and coastal scenes.

Q: You're on the road a lot during a routine day.

A: Yes. I often go see my printers when they're printing my posters. I do adjustments then. Before this process, I do pre-press things, like making adjustments on the computer, getting the colors right.

Q: Are most artists this responsible?

A: I am. I have to go the extra mile. If you take pride in your work, it will pay you back. I don't want to put anything out there that's not good. It's necessary that my work reflects me.

Q: What are you "putting out" there now that's different from last year, for example?

A: I'm doing a calendar; we sold out the 2006 one so I'm working on 2007. There will be images of porches and beach scenes. I'm also creating greeting cards.

Q: Whatever you do, you have certain scenes that are your signature. Images that characterize this region, give it its special charm. Rocking chairs, porches on old homes, salt marshes. The cover this week has an image of a sailboat. Isn't this a bit different from your usual subjects?

A: Yes. It's called "Lady Stirling," named after the original English name of Greenport, Stirling Harbor. I wanted to do something different, and it worked. But it was a challenge to get a nice flow, a smooth transition from dark to light when the waves come up.

Q: Speaking of different, you worked with varied media in the past?

A: Yes. I loved drawing as a child and still enjoy it as an adult. I did watercolor and pastel. Now, of course, I work with acrylic. In the future, I may use oil.

Q: About the future. Where would you like to go to paint? I know you would never leave this area altogether.

A: San Francisco. Tuscany. Where the wine country is.

Q: Maybe you'll include a bottle of wine in your next painting.

Oops. That's not a question.

Ethereal Objects in East Hampton

Beginning with a reception on June 3, The Drawing Room art gallery in East Hampton will be presenting a gorgeous display of jewelry created by artist Ruth Nivola, on view until June 26. The show is titled "Adornments," evoking images of sensuous luxury.

Ms. Nivola, resident of East Hampton since the 1940s and wife of the late artist Constantino Nivola, creates her decorative art objects in yarns, Indian silks, brocade, and Venetian beads. For this collection, gold and silver colored metallic yarns were crocheted into "collar pieces" that radiate delicacy and power. Her shapes are inspired by musical instruments, plant forms, insects and the embroidered costumes from her husband's country of Sardinia, though the history of arts in a multitude of nations, both modern and ancient shines through. She counts among her influences the cultures of Egypt and Greece.

Ruth Nivola's jewelry has been shown at the American Craft Museum, the Zabriskie Gallery, Longhouse Reserve and abroad.

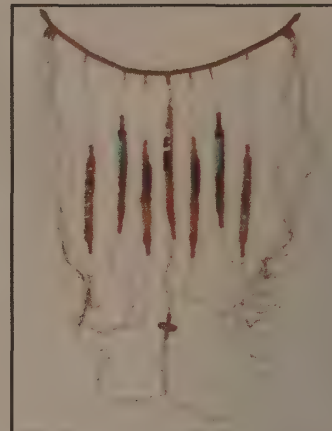

It is a show not to be missed. Call 631-324-5016 for details.

Going Deep

Last Saturday evening, when friends inquired as to how I had spent the beautiful day, I said, "I got a facial and a deep tissue massage." They thought it was a joke. After all, it isn't every day that a man gets a facial and a deep tissue massage, but maybe it should be.

I had spent the morning at the gym, which left my neck and back muscles in knots. To top it off, I had a slight headache from the night before – hey, it's the summer – so I headed east to La Bella Vita, in Montauk, for a little relaxation and pampering.

I wasn't sure about it at first. The idea somehow seemed silly. I pictured a pair of cucumber slices on my eyes and a couple of light karate chops to my shoulder blades and wondered how that could help me, but I was willing to take the risk.

Men have shied away from the idea of spas for years, thinking it for the fairer sex. They take care of their boats and their cars, getting tune ups and paint jobs, but most men don't seem to put that kind of attention into taking care of themselves.

The individual rooms at La Bella Vita were peaceful, lit only by tea candles and filled with soothing music. I have to admit, I had my eyes closed for the entire deep tissue facial. It wasn't out of fear, but because from the moment I laid down on the heated table, I was ready to relax. Since I didn't actually see anything, I can only tell you what I had smelled and felt. That's the thing about a spa, it allows you to let your overworked senses and muscles rest.

Linda covered my eyes with a warm towel and then examined my skin type in order to decide which treatments I required. It was going to be a deep cleansing. Before Linda even touched my face, I picked up a hint of citrus. It was a light exfoliate which she massaged into my skin. The scent perked the senses and felt fresh. A warm towel was used to help open my pores and then a sweet oatmeal and almond scrub opened the pores a little more. There was another warm towel, some lavender oil, and then the light steam. It must have been ten or twenty minutes of steam on my face, but I can't be sure. In the enjoyment, I simply lost track of time. Between successive stages, Linda massaged my scalp, hands and feet, which only added to the relaxing experience.

Then it was on to the deep pore cleaning – a moment of slight pain for a lifetime of pleasure. Once the pores were cleaned, there were a few more steps to the process, including more delightful smells and soothing cleansing motions, which returned me to a relaxed state and toned my skin.

When it was all over, my face actually felt lighter.

Not only that, when I got a chance to look in a mirror, it looked lighter and smoother than ever before – Not bad attributes for a Saturday night on the town. But I wasn't done just yet. With the face finished, the great staff at La Bella Vita still had to take care of the rest of my tired, aching body.

A deep tissue massage is designed to cleanse toxins and lactic acid from your muscles. It isn't painful, but there are times when a slight discomfort occurs as the masseuse kneads your body; this includes a slight pop at the end of each successive maneuver. After nearly 30 years of physical activity, plus countless hours typing at a computer, my neck and back were inundated with knots. Charlie, my masseuse, asked me if there were any specific parts of my body that required additional focus. I mentioned where things were bothering me. By the end of the 70-minute session, there was no pain or tightness left in the trouble areas (and three days later, still none). In fact, there wasn't much tightness anywhere on my body. She even gave me a tip on how to help break down the knots in my lower neck between massage sessions.

It was such an interesting experience. Not exactly the "Ahhh, I'm so relaxed," that people are always describing, but more subtle. As she worked muscle group by muscle group, I could feel my body coming to an overall state of mental and physical relaxation. In other words, when Charlie finished, I would have

Take a Stroll for the Soul

"Walking is man's best medicine."

Hippocrates may have only had the physical in mind when he credited the "sport" as an ideal form of medicine – but maybe he, too, knew of its psychological benefits.

Here in the United States, there has been a steady, but growing awareness and attention paid to walking – but more of a focus on the power walk rather than the pleasure one. European cultures have a lot to teach us about the methods and benefits of the stroll. Historically, walking has also been associated with creativity. It was writer Gretel Ehrlich who said, "Walking is also an ambulation of mind."

Much English literature is associated with walkers – either drawing directly from the environs around the walker or serving as a place to empty one's mind and contemplate other, often unearthly ideas and concepts. To a lesser degree some American writers adopted that tradition. Emerson and Thoreau both are associated with partaking in pleasure walking and also espousing its many benefits.

Today in Italy, England, France, and Germany distinctive walking subcultures exist. In Italy, La Passagiata takes place in early evening where the slow stroll through the main streets of the town is a tradition that is carried out today in small villages across the country. It is a social occasion serving as fodder for gossip as new relationships are often showcased during this evening walks. Older villagers often refrain from the exercise, instead stationing themselves along the route, beer or wine in hand and eyes peeled for new things to talk about. In Italy, summertime will often inspire residents to drive to the coast or to lakes to carry on the tradition of La Passagiata, escaping, even if only temporarily, the greedy eyes of noisy elders, and replacing the view of the town with more scenic vistas.

In England, hiking has a long tradition with the countryside full of "walker's paths." A movement occurred last century that makes it possibly today for hikers of different economic backgrounds to share the rights to hike along foot paths in the countryside – even when the countryside is privately owned. Footpaths are usually fairly well marked and run along the borders of property, providing a walking route from town to town. Early mornings throughout the year, English townsfolk can be seen, in galoshes, if the weather is rainy or the grounds muddy, walking along these footpaths, often times with one or more dogs. The country has become more American in many ways, but still in small towns the slower tradition of the morning walk remains intact.

In France, the flâneur is one who used the pleasure walk as a way to observe everyday life – making himself (as flâneurs were men, in fact upper-middle class men. A flâneuse is a female flâneur and not as common) an observer of class distinctions and modern life. The flâneur was almost always a walking anthropologist or sociologist, and his walks, often in large cities, provided him with almost unending mental notes. Today in France, the tradition is not as strong and the more popular form of walking is usually associated with the mountains and involves hiking and climbing as opposed to simply flat walking.

In Germany, volksmarching is a group activity. Begun in the 1960s, the organized, group walks have spread to both the U.K. and the U.S. A social event that often involves stops for food and/or beer, the walks are a less competitive activity – and stress the social aspects of walking.

The United States has adopted a variety of these European walking activities and adapted them to fit the cultural idiosyncrasies of different areas. The Italian tradition is often still practiced in urban, ethnic neighborhoods in the United States, and to a lesser degree in suburban areas as well; pleasure walking around one's neighborhood today includes brief stops to chat with a neighbor, even to gossip about goings-on in the community.

The English footpaths don't exist here. However, thousands of miles of hiking paths can be easily found where walkers can enjoy the full experience of walking in undeveloped areas. The flâneurs still exist to different degrees, with many people getting to know their new neighborhoods or city by unguided walking tours. And the volksmarches occur officially in many places in the Mid West, but have been adopted across the country usually associated with a fundraising event for a charity.

Whatever your preferred form of walking takes, remember to do it and to exhale.

Introducing a New Lunchtime Facelift

Summer is the time that everyone looks forward to all year. You're making plans for vacations, fun at the beach, and traveling. You've been working out and eating right so you can look great in that new bathing suit and you're ready to have a good time.

But your face still looks tired and old and you can't figure out exactly what it is that makes you look this way. You compared yourself to pictures from 20, 10, or even 5 years ago and you don't like what you see. Maybe it's the hollows where you once had full cheeks or maybe it's your eyes that look hooded and smaller than they were.

You're not alone. As we age we lose the important facial fat that supports the contours of our face. The brow line, eye area and cheekbones all start to sag and sink, leaving behind depressed areas where we once had fullness. You actually deflate and descend as you age!

There is now an amazing new non-surgical facelift that can re-inflate these hollow areas, giving you back your more youthful looking face. It is called the Restylift™. Scheduled to be seen on the "Today Show" on NBC this month, Restylift™ is quickly becoming one of the most popular non-surgical cosmetic treatments available.

"I am excited to introduce this breakthrough treatment to this area," says Dr. Alexander Covey, one of the leading cosmetic surgeons in New York and one of the first on the East Coast certified to perform the Restylift™ procedure. "I can now give my patients back something that traditional facelifts cannot - fullness and volume - making them look instantly younger in a more natural and attractive way."

Why is this treatment so popular? Restylift™ uses Restylane, the well-known, FDA-approved, natural wrinkle filler that, up until now, has primarily been used to fill in the lines and folds of the face. In fact, according to the American Academy of Cosmetic Surgery, Restylane injections were ranked 2nd after Botox as the top cosmetic procedure done in 2005.

A Restylift™ is not a surgical procedure, there is no cutting involved so there is no downtime nor lengthy recuperation periods like there can be with traditional facelifts. And unlike surgical facelifts, which only pull and tighten your skin and can make a deflated face look gaunt, Restylift™ lifts and plumps up hollowed and sunken areas of your face including your cheeks, eyebrows and mouth. Also, because Restylift™ places Restylane deeper, it lasts longer than when it's used just as a wrinkle filler.

"This procedure has really taken off. I'm performing 4 to 5 Restylift™ procedures each week and the demand keeps growing," says Dr. Covey. "My patients love that this safe, effective treatment is usually done in less than a half hour and has no downtime so they can return to their normal activities right away."

Donna Casey, a 48-year-old landscaper from Shirley, was unhappy about her aging looks. She thought she looked tired and drained and her cheeks and jaw line looked sunken. "I looked old and worn out. I went to see Dr. Covey for a Restylift™ and am thrilled with the instant results. My face looks great and people can't believe how much younger and refreshed I look."

Joanne Wilkinson, a 60-year-old nurse from East Hampton, also wanted to get back her youthful looking face. "I didn't like how my mouth was sinking into deep lines and folds making me look tired and old. Dr. Covey perked up and lifted my whole mouth and cheek area. I'm amazed that such a simple procedure could make me look so much younger."

Restylift™ can also be used in conjunction with other minimally invasive treatments such as Thermage, the non-surgical skin tightening procedure, IPL (Intense Pulsed Light) photo-rejuvenation, Botox, and laser wrinkle reduction just to name a few.

"Everyone ages differently and everyone's skin is unique," says Dr. Covey. "You want cosmetic procedures that can be shaped and tailored to fit your exact need. I'm happy that I can offer my patients such a wide variety of the most advanced non-surgical rejuvenation treatments and combine them in different ways to help them look and feel better about themselves."

To find out more about Restylift™ and other non-surgical cosmetic treatments call Dr. Covey at (631) 878-9200 to schedule a free consultation in Southampton, Center Moriches or Manhattan. And visit www.restyliftnewyork.com and www.eastendlasercare.com.

Dr. Covey is board certified and has been named one of the Top Doctors in New York for the third year in a row by the Castle Connolly Group.

Go Ride a Kite

On May 13th, Kirsty Jones broke the world distance record by kitesurfing 140 miles, non stop, from Lanzarote to Morocco in 9 hours. That same day, a friend of mine caught a current on Napeague Bay that took him straight across the bay at bone-chilling speed and marooned him miles up the beach, causing the usually responsible chap to miss a business meeting. At dinner that night, he described precisely what it feels like to soar across the dark expanse of bay-water on a crisp spring day, harnessed to an enormous kite, carried by a steady fury of wind at up to 30 knots and fueled by an adrenaline overload. I began to understand just how intoxicating this new sport might be. And how addictive, too.

Adrenaline junkies are easily recognized. They're the guys and gals who are windsurfing through the hurricanes, building zip lines in the backyard and rock-climbing by moonlight. You've seen them, heard of them, perhaps you are one. If so, you surely know about the phenomenon of kitesurfing already.

Popularized by French and Hawaiian stars in early 1999, kitesurfing is the fastest growing water sport in the world.

Napeague Bay, on a good day, is spotted with the likes of them — guys defining the latest freestyle moves with big air glides and looping giant circles thirty feet in the air. Many associate the sport with the serenity of the vast space of the flat bay and surfing along in the company of flying fish. Others are a bit more charged on the topic: "It's a mind blowing exhibition of a sport that transcends all the barriers," said a local kitesurfer from Montauk. "It's very three dimensional."

Basically, the sport is an amalgamation that seems too good to be true (or legal) — wind surfing, wakeboarding, surfing, and kite-flying. Add the element of chance (for what's less predictable than the wind?) and the possibility of limitless big air to the fusion of these disciplines and we've got something sure to make your mothers cry and your brothers jealous.

Almost anyone can do it, but unlike surfing, snowboarding and skateboarding, experts wouldn't recommend throwing on some pads and trying it solo without taking a few lessons first. It's dangerous and the equipment is quite complex.

These power kites are large fabric kites, typically made from rip-stop nylon with inflatable plastic bladders. This isn't a dime-store Kermit the Frog kite kids fly in the park. Rather, this Pterodactyl-like monster is powerful when it gets going; any slight movement of the hand translates to a much bigger motion in the air.

For someone starting off, there will be usually be three lessons: one completely on land, one mixed and the third completely in the water.

Generally, the first step of kitesurfing is to fly one's kite into neutral position, in which the kite is de-powered at the edge of the wind-window, and therefore not pulling except against one's body weight. Because of strong forces that can be generated by sudden wind gusts, people can be lofted, carried off, dashed against water, buildings, terrain or power lines, resulting in what's called a kitemare.

Here are a few guidelines to maximize safety and avoid these kitemares.

Avoid kitesurfing in crowded areas, near rocks, trees, or power lines. Try to ride with side-shore winds. (Avoid offshore or directly onshore winds.) Pay attention to changing weather and wind conditions. Do not remove or disable factory-installed safety equipment or releases. (The most basic is a quick-release harness safety system.) Never use a board leash without wearing a helmet. Avoid riding "over-powered" (meaning, using too large a kite for the wind) and be extra careful when landing or launching. It's advisable to either un-hitch your kite from your harness while on-shore, holding onto it with only your arms, so you can release if necessary, or simply be ready to operate the quick-release mechanism. Carry a knife attached to the harness for cutting tangled lines. And most important, take some lessons.

Excuse Me, But Your Venus is in My Moon

Last week, I shared my experiences with acupuncture, which really has been a miracle for me, allowing me to function without unbearable neck and shoulder pain caused by stress. Today, as promised, I will discuss astrology, and then tie all of my experiences together with reference to quantum physics. At the quantum level, there is essentially no physicality, and we are all inter-connected.

Astrology. Rest assured that I believe strongly in free will and that life involves making choices, large and small. I do not believe that astrology can predict anything with certainty, and no one should look to astrology for answers unless he or she is prepared to use it as a tool to look within. When I write about astrology, I am not talking about generic blurbs one reads in a glossy magazine.

Classic astrology posits that, because we all exist in the same Universe governed by the same laws, the cycles of the sun, moon and planets within the Universe reflect the very same energies existing within ourselves, for we are part of the Universe. This theory makes the most sense to me with respect to natal astrology, in which we explore our personalities with reference to the placement of the sun, moon and planets at the moment of birth. That is, I find it useful to look to my natal astrological chart as a tool for helping me to address my issues in the same way that a psychologist would look to my childhood experiences.

I came to this belief after consulting, over the course of several phone calls, with a very serious professional astrologer named Kevin Burk (www.therealastronomy.com). In each discussion, he pointed to aspects of my natal chart and offered theories on how those configurations might reflect my approach to life, all the while suggesting that it is my decision whether to give in to the natal energies or elect to change my approach to life. In all cases, his analysis of whom I am, based on my natal chart in its entirety (and not just my Sun sign), was so uncannily accurate that it was almost scary. Later, I would use a variety of resources to perform a very amateur natal chart analysis of two people, one whom I know well and one whom I just met. Both felt that my analysis hit the mark.

Space prevents me from establishing what I have just written, but let me give one quick example from my own chart. Although I come from a close-knit family that will always provide a soft place to land, I have extreme difficulty making deep emotional connections, preferring fleeting emotions and the appearance of balance and harmony over the mess of emotional engagement and entanglement. Any astrologer who knows that my natal Moon and my natal Venus (both of which relate to emotional connections) are in Libra would predict that this is true of me. Of course, this does not mean that I am incapable of choosing to form deep emotional connections – just that I am less comfortable doing so than are some other people and, therefore, need to work on this issue. This is merely a small example of many.

It's All About Quantum Physics. Last week, I discussed the miraculous way in which the ancient practice of Chinese acupuncture helped me. That and my embrace of natal astrology are quite peculiar indeed, as it is difficult for me to integrate non-linear, non-scientific concepts into my worldview. Even as I write these articles, describing the Qi and the importance of my Libra Moon and Venus, I feel a bit like a pod person. How can I really believe in all this? In fact, it is my belief that a scientific basis for the success of acupuncture and astrology lies in quantum physics. So too does anything inexplicable yet verifiable (not some hoax), such as mystics who walk on fire-hot coals.

Seriously, quantum physics is mind-blowing. During the 20th century, as they split the atom and found increasingly smaller components, some shocking and remarkable discoveries were made. At its most simplistic, quantum physics establishes that the tiniest sub-atomic particles exist in a wave of possible locations and become fixed only when we look at them. (Physicist Brian Greene has written two fascinating, yet accessible, books on the subject: The Elegant Universe and The Fabric of the Cosmos.) All matter is nothing but a possibility that takes form when we focus on it. You, me, the chair, my computer, your Hummer, even Dan's Papers: none of it is any more physically or substantively "real" than the thoughts that are in your mind as you read this.

Thinking about ourselves at the quantum physical level opens up amazing possibilities. For one thing, the concept of the Qi and the practice of acupuncture no longer seems particularly odd. If our physical bodies are merely expressions of quantum physical thought, why shouldn't these bodies be composed of invisible energies whose paths can be altered by inserting supposedly physical needles at supposedly physical points?

Moreover, it is not merely metaphysical or philosophical to say that we are one with the Universe; it is factually accurate at a quantum level. Everything is composed of particles that flit in and out of existence based on our thoughts and observations. Everything is energy. So, doesn't it seem something less than outrageous to suspect that the cycles of the supposedly physical planets might in some way reflect the way we approach our lives?

And get this: considering the meaning of quantum physics takes us far beyond acupuncture and astrology. Those are the easy concepts to embrace. If consciousness and thought are in some way relevant to the physical reality that we experience, then we may very well have a far greater ability to create our own realities than we imagine. In this regard, I highly recommend the thought-provoking movie What the Bleep Do We Know, which explores, in quite a fun way, what quantum physics has to say about the power of the mind.

Perhaps I have gone off the deep end, but I invite you to consider the possibilities. After all, if what I have come to believe is correct, wouldn't you want to investigate how acupuncture, astrology and quantum physics might help in your own life?

—David Stoll

Skin deep with Samantha Altea

Only if the suit fits.....

"She wore an it'sy bitsy, teeny weenie, yellow polka dot bikini....." If this song, along with the haunting phrase "bathing suit season" fills you with dread, then stop, take five and breathe. No need to begin starvation-like rations of food to feel good about wearing a suit, nor should everyone wear a teeny weenie one. That crash diet you've been meaning to get around to all winter long would be too unhealthy to rush into and you'll probably end up looking and feeling terrible. But never fear, Samantha, your swimming "costume" (bathing suit in England) fairy is here to help. We all can and should have the pleasure and self confidence of wearing a great suit at the beach, no matter what size or shape, and so part two of my get set for summer series illustrates a plan of action for getting the most fabulous look at the beach.

Step one is the most important thing to consider.....

1. Figure out your body shape and you're almost on your way to a flawless looking figure.

Legs short?

To elongate short legs, look for a two piece swimsuit. A two piece, cut high on the thigh, really makes the legs look longer and more slender.

Hips a tad wide?

Boy shorts are very in at the moment and great to camouflage ladies with a wider girth. You could also try a one piece that sits high on the thighs to lengthen the legs and draw the eye away from your problem area.

You Have No Bust? (Hello, that would be me)

Know that little mantra, "I must, I must, I must improve my bust." If you've been trying to exercise your pectorals to no avail and are ending up with the same size décolleté, then quite frankly, the only thing to do is cheat. Go for a suit with a little padding, or look for a top that lifts - like the ones that have strings that tie around the neck. They do an amazing job of creating the illusion of cleavage. Some bronzer shadow in that area helps, too.

Torso too long?

Tankinis are the way to go. You know, the two piece suits with an elongated top half. The reason that these work so well is that the longer top disguises the fact that you are long and lean.

A little thick around the waist?

Tankinis work for you, too. But a dark, monotone one piece is your best bet. If you can find a pattern that goes at an angle running across and down, that can give the illusion of a smaller waist, too.

Your Torso is too short?

A high neckline on a one piece will stretch you out. So what if you're only 4ft 11.....with this cut of suit you'll look inches taller! A two piece that sits low on your hips is also something to try.

Tummy Troubles?

Go for suits that offer a cover-up piece that will be sure to take away from the problem area. Plus they're very chic this year. Cover ups can be draped in many different ways and shapes to disguise a tummy, or even bigger hips. Ladies with a slightly pudgy tum could also look for suits with built-in tummy support.

Other things to consider:

1. When trying on a suit, be sure to move around, as you might at the beach. Sit, squat, wiggle. Jump as if playing beach volleyball, or running after rug rats if you have any, and when doing this in the privacy of your home, or store dressing room, make sure everything stays in place.

2. If you see any of those pesky little bulges whilst trying a suit, sorry, but whether the label says it's your size or not - you have the wrong size and trust me, as a size 2, we've all got bulges! It doesn't mean you need a crash diet. Just a suit that fits and flatters you in all the right places.

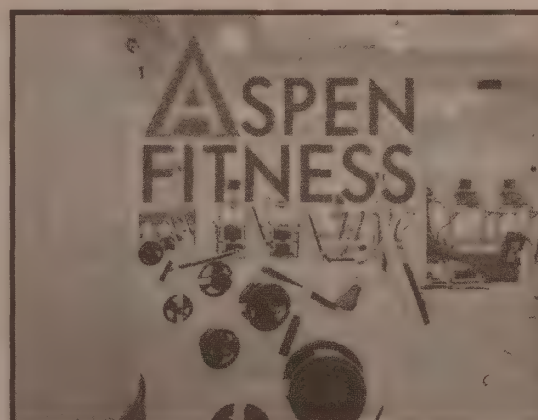

3. Be comfortable.....(so even if the hottest style of the season happens to be a thong (which it isn't, thank goodness!) you have to feel confident and comfortable when in a state of half-undress. No hemming and hawing. Search until you have the right suit for you and you'll find the confidence.

4. Labels lie. Not only when it comes to bathing suits, but in general. Meaning that different designers cut differently. So try on your standard size, but also be prepared to try a size or two bigger or smaller. It's only a number, after all; and if it makes you feel better, cut out the label once you've purchased the suit.

5. Be prepared to spend a little more for a great fit and fabric. Think about it. You practically live in your suits all summer long. It's worth the investment in time and money to feel good about yourself.

6. Lastly, only if the suit fits should you wear it, so take the time to make sure it does.

The Sag Harbor Farmers Market will open for the season on Saturday, June 3, against the colorful backdrop of the Breakwater Yacht Club at Bay and Burke streets. At the open market managed by Kate Plumb, a leader of the local Convivium of Slow Food USA, 12 vendors will set up shop under an awning, offering diverse products from local organic growers.

Some of the vendors include Under the Willow, featuring organic greens and their irresistible radishes, Art Ludlow's Mecox Dairy's sumptuous cheeses, Hampton Honey and their winning honey selections, Open-Minded Organics and their specialty home-grown mushrooms, Joan Bernstein's Paumanok preserves, Rima & Son's organic condiments, fresh fish and shellfish from the Seafood Shop in Wainscott, Blue Duck Bakeries' creative breads and Martine Abitbol's delectable pastries. Surely, you'll find everything you need for Saturday night's dinner, including flowers from Liberty Farms in Sagaponack.

Going to a Farmers Market is very much a communal happening. Meeting and chatting with the growers and producers gives one the feeling of being connected to where the food is coming from.

BRAISED WILD MUSHROOM AND GREENS SALAD

Braising, a method of cooking generally reserved to cook less tender cuts of meat such as short ribs and shanks, is used here to cook a mix of flavorful mushrooms with balsamic vinegar. The following inspired salad is topped with tender mushrooms and toasted pignoli nuts.

Serves 4-6

For the mushrooms

1/2 pound mushrooms, shiitake, King oyster mix
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 large leek, trimmed, washed well and thinly sliced
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1/3 cup balsamic vinegar
2 tablespoons water
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

For the Greens and Vinaigrette

4 cups mesclun or mixed salad greens, washed and spin-dried
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil

Coarse (kosher) salt
1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar
Freshly ground pepper to taste
1/4 cup toasted pignoli nuts for garnish

1. Cut off and discard mushroom stems. Rinse mushrooms in a colander, tossing them gently under a spray of cool water. Transfer to paper towels and pat dry. Cut shiitakes into 1/4-inch slices and separate oyster mushrooms at the stem end. Set aside.

2. Warm the olive oil in a large 10-12-inch non-stick skillet. Add the leeks and garlic and sauté, stirring for a minute or so. Add the prepared mushrooms, toss to mix and cook, stirring occasionally for 3-4 minutes until mushrooms are slightly tender. Add balsamic vinegar and water, cover the pan and simmer for 6-8 minutes over low heat. To serve the mushrooms warm, leave in the skillet to reheat later. Can be prepared up to a couple of hours ahead to this point.

3. To serve, place the prepared greens in a large mixing bowl. Add olive oil and salt and toss to coat. Add the vinegar and several grinds of freshly ground pepper. Toss with abandon to distribute the dressing. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary. Divide greens on 4 to 6 plates, top with mushrooms and a sprinkle of pignoli nuts. Serve at once.

RAVANI

This sweet honey cake is a Sephardic family heirloom. The cake is traditionally made at Shavouth, also known as the Feast of Weeks, or Pentecost, the late spring holiday when cheese-filled pastries and dairy products are made to commemorate the spring harvest.

Yield: About 38-40 pieces

3/4 cup butter, melted
1/4 cup canola or vegetable oil
3/4 cup honey

1/4 cup sugar
2 large eggs, lightly beaten
1 plus 3/4 cups unbleached all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Lightly grease a 10x2-inch round baking pan; do not flour.

Preheat oven to 300 degrees.

1. Put the melted butter in a large mixing bowl. Add the vegetable oil, honey and sugar and stir with a wooden spoon until thoroughly incorporated.

2. Add the beaten eggs and stir to mix well. Sift the flour and the baking powder together and carefully stir into the base mixture until ingredients are thoroughly incorporated.

3. Pour into prepared pan and bake in preheated oven for 50 minutes to 1 hour. Cake is done when it pulls away from the side of the pan and the surface is a medium honey color. Place the cake pan on a cake rack to cool.

Note: Traditionally, the cake was left in the pan to cool completely then cut into diamond shapes for serving. Ravani can be prepared one or two days ahead and kept at room temperature or securely wrapped for the freezer.

To cut diamond shapes: draw straight lines with a sharp paring knife about 1-inch apart across the pan, then take the knife and draw diagonal lines across the straight ones, also about 1-inch apart, to create diamond shapes.

Dining in the Hamptons

Planning for Unplanned Guests

As acquaintances and old friends awaken from winter's inertia, it is as though the warming ocean breezes sweep them through our front doors here in the Hamptons. Because I am lucky enough to live near the sea, this is the time of year when I find myself entertaining more spontaneously than in other months. To accommodate unplanned guests, I keep a stock of fresh herbs from the garden, vegetables, and fruits in my pantry and fridge. Avocados, mangoes and plump tomatoes hold court on the kitchen windowsill, ripening quickly in the long daylight hours.

The following is a list of summer stock-ingredients to keep on hand – allowing you to feed whomever the wind blows in.

Salads, instant guacamole and salsas: There is a wider variety of delicate greens available during the summer. Look for locally grown lettuces, such as frisee, bibb and baby spinach, which offer a refreshing change from winter's heartier salad fare.

Kirby cucumbers, scallions, and bags of shredded cabbage and carrots for coleslaw are also stock items. To top the salads, refrigerate hard boiled eggs and store nuts, currants and raisins in the larder.

For salsas and guacamole, arm yourself with avocados, mangoes, juicy tomatoes, Jalapeno and chili peppers, assorted bell peppers, Bermuda and Vidalia onions.

Last minute marinades and basting: A variety of fresh herbs, including but not limited to cilantro, flat leaf parsley, dill, oregano, and marjoram, assorted flavored mustards, vinegars, soy sauce, and a stash of shallots.

Fruit salads – ever welcome on a sultry day: watermelon, cantaloupe, honeydew, grapes, blueberries, peaches, plums, and strawberries – not only a refreshing dessert, but ideal for a quick, delicious breakfast when served with fresh vanilla yogurt, plump raisins, and granola.

Instant Main Courses: Stash bags of cleaned shrimp from the supermarket in your freezer along with tins of crabmeat and reasonably priced cuts of beef and chicken for grilling. While freezing meat might compromise its flavor, marinating the thawed beef will revive it. Marinated and grilled skirt steak is especially delicious in Fajitas.

Cheeses for salads, quick quesadillas, and hors d'oeuvres: Monterey jack, sharp cheddar, crumbled bleu, soft brie, Jarlsberg, and more.

For quick desserts: Keep a supply of your favorite bakery cookies and brownies sealed tightly and frozen. Assorted chocolates, sorbets and ice cream, caramel and hot fudge toppings make instant sun-daes.

Remember, you'll also need a large cooler and ice or freezer packs on hand to keep your food fresh at the beach.

And most importantly, file a supply of take-out menus from your favorite caterers and restaurants, just in case your guests want to feed you.

Shrimp and Mango Salad Sandwiches

Serves 4

- 1 lb. medium shrimp, shelled, deveined, and coarsely chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter, divided
- 3 tablespoons shallots, minced
- 1 heaping tablespoon curry powder
- 3/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 3/4 cup diced mango
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/4 to 1/2 cup mayonnaise

1. In a large skillet, sauté the shallots in 1 tablespoon of the butter over medium-high heat until translucent, about 5 minutes. Add the chopped shrimp and remaining tablespoon of butter. Sprinkle with ginger and curry powder. If the spices stick to the pan, toss in about a tablespoon of water to deglaze the pan.

2. Stirring constantly, sauté until shrimp begin to turn pink. This only takes a minute or so.

3. Transfer to a bowl. Add the mango and season with salt and pepper to taste, mixing thoroughly. Allow the mixture to cool slightly before proceeding.

4. Fold in the mayonnaise 1/4 cup at a time to desired consistency. Cover and refrigerate or assemble sandwiches to go.

Quick Cole Slaw

Serves 4

- 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
- 1 tablespoon cider vinegar
- 1/2 to 1 tablespoon sugar, or to taste

- 1/4 cup peanut oil
- 3 cups shredded cabbage
- 1/2 cup shredded carrots
- 1/2 cup diced scallions
- 1 red bell pepper, diced
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- Chopped parsley and toasted sesame seeds (optional)

1. In a large bowl, combine the prepared vegetables.

2. In a small bowl, whisk together the mustard and vinegar. In a steady stream, drizzle in the oil, whisking constantly.

3. Toss the slaw with the dressing and season with salt and pepper. Sprinkle with parsley and sesame seeds and transfer to 1 quart lidded containers and refrigerate until time to go.

The Garden At Rock Cottage by Lance Brilliantine

Rhodo-Magic

The magic begins at Memorial Day: beautiful purple, red, white, and mauve blossoms fill the landscape. The magic of rhododendron is undeniable. This wonderful evergreen is a mainstay of gardens and can be considered the best flowering evergreen for temperate landscapes.

Rhododendrons are of the same genus Rhododendron that is part of the family of plants named Ericaceae. This family includes heathers, mountain laurels, blueberries, and cranberries. Rhododendrons exist naturally in the wild, occurring mostly in mountainous regions of the arctic and northern temperate zones. They are typical selections in estate gardens.

Gardeners have collected rhododendron species for more than a century, and recent hybridizing has increased the range of colors and blooming season. Hence, the clever gardener can perpetuate the lovely blooms from the end of May through July.

Most of the "rhodys" seen today are hybrids that have been propagated from cuttings or tissue cultures. These shrubs have large, shiny, leathery, evergreen leaves, and clusters of large flowers in pink, white, rose, purple, or shades in between.

The newest hybrids include colors like peach, mottled yellow and orange. Some of those that bloom in July exude a sticky, sweet nectar around flowers to attract insects.

Rhododendrons grow best in filtered light or partial sunlight. The roots are shallow, so must be kept cool and moist. The plants are as reactive to too much moisture as they are to drought, so gardeners with sprinkler systems are cautioned to make sure sprinklers are well managed.

Rhododendrons are not suitable for beachfront properties where they receive full sunlight and the heat of sandy soil. In these conditions the plants dehydrate, the flowers fade quickly, and the leaves burn and dry. In such instances, the shrub will be leggy and flowers sparse.

Rhododendrons provide the best effect when planted in groups of three or more. The plants are excellent choices at the fronts of properties, along garden paths, or when used to punctuate landscape design. At Rock Cottage, we have several groupings of rhododendrons that produce various shades of blossom, and add a wonderful effect to the late spring garden.

Select sites where rhododendrons will receive protection from winter winds. This will avoid leaf scorch and splitting of the stem bark. Ideally, a site that slopes north or east and that receives protection from south and west winds works well.

To plant rhododendrons use soil that has been amended with organic material. Garden loam,

Porches that Rock (and Swing)

Is there anything better than sitting on your porch on a sweet summer night? Nothing quite equals the peace and serenity that are captured as you bask in the moonlight, feel the gentle breeze floating by and hear the cricket orchestra performing. It's wonderful. So, with the summer nights not too far off, it might be time to revamp and update your porch area as I'm sure you'll be spending a lot of time there.

Each of us have preferences. There's always one chair or couch that we like for its style and comfort. We often get very "Archie Bunkerish" and possessive over that one particular piece of furniture that cradles our body like no other. I was at a great party the other day and, of course, since it was a warm spring night we meandered out on the porch with our drinks in hand. A few of us gathered on the best piece of furniture in the place, the porch swing. Who doesn't like a porch swing? From the time we are babies we have been courted and swayed by a rocking motion. Moms use swings to get babies to sleep and even as adults the rocking motion brings us to a state of utter relaxation.

I love Brookstone's Hammaka chair. It's a porch swing and individual hammock in one, all for the rea-

Most times when I head to my porch during the early morning or evening it's simply to get away from the phone and TV, to just relax. I highly recommend hooking up with a comfortable chaise lounge or two. Sears has some stylish and comfortable ones. The garden oasis chaise lounge sells for around $170. The white color and aluminum frame will blend nicely with your other porch furniture. Smith and Hawken has a sophisticated-looking double chaise lounge. While the bases are connected, the tops swing independently. So if your significant other wants to recline, while you want to sit up reading, it'll work for both of you. I also loved their Belmont chaise. If you feel like royalty then this chaise is for you. The chaise is modeled after the furniture that was used on ocean liners in the 20s. The furniture has one arm wider than the other and offers a sturdy support for sitting up with plenty of legroom. It's a gorgeous piece of furniture and sells for around $950.

You might also opt to put a couple of cute rocking chairs on your porch. Exterior Accents has some fun chairs. The Savannah outdoor rocking chair would go great with your Belmont chaise. It has classic appeal with that down home Southern charm. The rocker is made of Brazilian cherry and is styled by the manufacturer of Tyndall Creek furniture. This store also sells a Charleson rocker and an enviro wood porch rocker. You can also purchase side tables of matching wood.

For the finishing touch, add a few fresh potted plants and flowers and your porch will be ready to go. Invite your friends and family over, get out the nachos and margaritas and enjoy the comfort of your porch. Summer goes by way to fast, so decorate in style and enjoy.

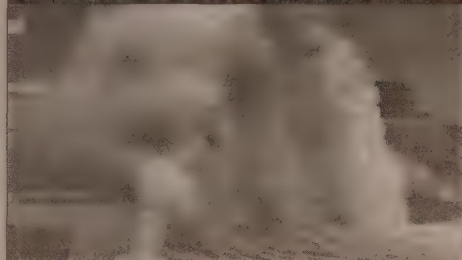

—Jessica Frank Gold

sonable price of $185! Archie Bunker would fight you for this! It comes with armrests, footrests and drink holders. It sits neatly on a tripod or can be hung in the corner of your porch on a strong metal hook. It's really fun. The CedarStore.com has a wide variety of porch swings and gliders. The white cedar swing with the swing stand is so subtle and pretty. The wood is insect resistant and can be stained or painted to match your outdoor décor and sells for $599. Add a few comfortable cushions in your pattern of choice and swing away.

Your swing is tucked into one corner and now you need to furnish the rest of the porch. You need a place to serve your snacks and drinks. Bistro sets are adorable. They don't take up a lot of room, yet have enough space for a light meal. Perfect for those morning omelets and iced coffee with just enough room for the morning paper. Exterior Accents has a functional and stylish Bistro set that my neighbor purchased a few weeks ago. The cedar bistro set is perfect for a screened-in porch. The set is rustic looking and the chairs are sturdy, square-shaped bar stools with backs as compared to the typical rounded bistro chair. The set is comfortable and looks great on its own or you can place a few cushions and a cute tablecloth on it for personal style. The set sells for around $500.

Summarizing Summerizing

With Memorial Weekend come and gone, the Hamptons' summer season has officially begun, making this the perfect time to revamp your house with a little extra summer flair. There is so much more that can be done besides setting up poolside lounge chairs and starting up the barbecue grill, though those are no doubt two integral parts of summers in the Hamptons!

One of the easiest ways to brighten up your house is to add some flowers. Anything from white or colored roses to carnations, sunflowers, snapdragons, and tulips will bring light to even the darkest of rooms. You can then take aqua-colored vintage canning jars, and use them as vases by placing carpenter's cloth inside the outer lid to serve as a frog that holds the flowers up.

Another easy and quick idea is to place a little treasure chest on top of a fireplace or mantel and fill it with trinkets, baubles, seashells and moss. This is great activity to do with young children, and with all the yard sales that go on during the summer season, finding just the right treasure chest can be a great way to spend an afternoon.

While you're collecting the seashells to display in the treasure chest, you can gather a few extra and make a collage of seashells by gluing them to plates, which can then be placed inside sun-bleached wooden frames.

If you are looking to take the makeover process a step further, cover your couch with blue slipcovers. The secret to stay-put slipcovers is to buy two – one to cover the base of the couch and the other to sew separate covers for the cushions. Give your loveseat or couch some extra panache by tying a piece of fabric around the middle section of the cushion, and by adding some floral print pillows.

Great for windowsills, or as centerpieces for an outdoor table, seashell plant holders are quick and easy to make. All you need is a seashell, some soap, air plants, and a mister. Hannah Milman, Holiday and Crafts Editor of Martha Stewart Living, suggests using largish shells (4 to 7 inches long), such as nautilus, hermit crab, or sea snail, which have cavities in which to insert the plants. If the shell is dirty, soak it overnight in soap and water, adding a few drops of bleach to help remove the smell and any remaining bacteria. Insert an air plant into the cavity of the shell. When the plant is secure, heavily mist it, making sure none of the water gets into the shell.

If you want to take it one step further, Milman suggests using twigs and twine to create a twig base on which to place your newly crafted planter. All you need to do is gather three twigs, each about 8 to 14 inches long, and tie them together with twine about three-quarters from the bottom end. Spread the twigs out slightly so they form a tripod, and then adjust the tripod so that it will hold the shell planter. Don't forget to place your planter in a bright spot with good air circulation, and it is imperative to mist the plants at least once a week.

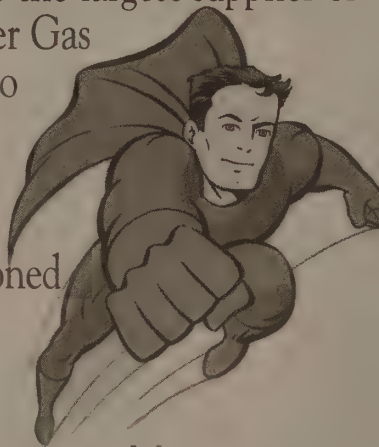

Candles are great for when you're gathered by a fireplace or just enjoying the cool nighttime summer breezes. Glue a small shell flat-side-down as a base for the curved underside of a large cockle shell. Use small wired wicks with bases to stand up inside the cockle shell and pour in melted paraffin wax. Scent the wax with French vanilla or pina colada for a pleasing summer scent. If the wax caves in a bit when it dries, just melt more and top it off until it's even.

Whether you are aiming to be creative or more apt to go to Main Street to search for fun finds, there are endless ways to summerize your house. So start decorating and let the barbecuing begin!

Real Estates by Diane Strecker

With the Memorial Day week end behind us, summer on the East End is in full swing. The towns are bustling with tourists or, as East End realtors would call them, potential buyers. Realtors here in the Hamptons find inventive ways to sell and show their listings. After all, buyers must be lured from the beach and pulled away from their waterside dining. Last season, many realtors claimed that July Fourth was the new Memorial Day. They were finding that summer renters were not coming as early but were renting from July when they could be sure of warmer weather. The rental market was sluggish. Summer landlords were beginning to break up the season into months and, in some case even weeks, in order to fill their summer rentals. The market was also flooded with rental listings. It seems the past few years have brought buyers out with the same idea; buying houses with the intention of renting them for large profits. There were too many homes for rent but fewer renters.

This season the opposite has turned out to be true. The rental market was hot as far back as February and seasonal residents gobbled up all they could find, particularly on the ocean, which always goes first. This season also brought many new summer people out looking for high-end, elaborate beach homes in which to impress and entertain. They certainly had the cash it took to grab them. Many rentals went in the hundreds of thousands.

After much speculation on who was to buy the corner store in East Hampton that was once Calypso, it has now been made public that Tahari will now takeover the $7.5 million space. At first, it was rumored that it was to be purchased by Paul McCartney for his designer daughter, Stella. The space that was once the site of the old post office is now one of the most valuable retail locales in the Hamptons.

And, there is yet one more commercial listing to add to the already growing number of motels, inns, boat basins and restaurants already on the market on the East End. The Ram's Head Inn on Shelter Island has now been added to the mix at $10.5 million. The 22-room inn is a Shelter Island landmark, as is its sister property, The Chequit. The Chequit is more visible than the Ram's Head, which is tucked away on Ram Island. This one is right in the heart of Shelter Island Heights and can also be yours at just under $5 million.

The Corcoran Group, that has been known for its unique and "Hamptonesque" methods of promoting East End real estate, has just appointed a new Vice President of their East End Region, Rick Hoffman. Mr. Hoffman will be expanding the company's presence throughout the Hamptons this season. He was formerly the regional Director of Operations for the Hamptons region for Prudential Douglas Elliman. The Corcoran Group launched a new advertising campaign this year that particularly targets East End buyers. They have also partnered with the Peconic Land Trust. The two organizations kicked off the season recently at the Steven Kasher gallery in New York with their first annual pre-summer cocktail party.

mixed with equal parts of coarse sand and ground bark or oak leaves, is a good combination and provided needed acidity. Ensure adequate drainage by first digging a hole about 18 inches deep and pouring in a bucket of water. If the water is standing after a half-hour, you need to dig deeper and add broken crockery, sand, or rocks to improve the quality of the drainage.

Contrary to what some nurseries will say, be sure to remove the burlap packing from around the roots before planting. Be careful not to disturb the fragile roots and to keep the root ball intact. Place loose soil at the bottom of the hole, position the plant so the soil line of the plant is level with the surrounding soil, and fill the hole with soil mixture. Water heavily after planting, and keep the plant well watered for the first growing season.

At the time of planting do not add any fertilizer to the hole. In fact, supplemental feeding is not normally necessary if you use a year-round mulch of rotted oak leaves. These are adequate to provide natural nutrients and to keep the soil cool and moist. If the leaves yellow, apply a light covering of fertilizer for acid-loving plants in early spring. (We have noticed that spreading spent coffee grounds around the roots seems to invigorate growth and create dark green leaves.)

A number of nurseries on the East End carry rhododendrons during spring. Marders, Country Gardens (Agway), and Wittendales all sell standard and unusual varieties. When purchasing, be sure to select plants that have large, full leaves. Never select plants with yellowed leaves, leaves that are withered, or where the root ball seems very dry. Look for multiple branches low on the root ball when selecting a plant.

Prune rhododendrons only after the flowers have faded, to induce new growth and control shape and size. Light-to-moderate pruning immediately after flowering will not affect flower-bud formation for the following year. Deadhead spent flowers to make the bush look more attractive and to increase the number of flowers for the following season.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

Dear Dan,

Thank you for your tribute to Brent in the May 12th issue. Dan's Papers was a favorite of his and he often mentioned what a fine writer you are. He could relate to that because his own letters and speeches were always beautifully written.

He was my brother, but more importantly, he was my next-door neighbor and my friend. Your kind words are very much appreciated.

Thank you.

AMBIEN ENVIRONMENT

Dear Dan,

I read your article in your May 12th issue in Dan's Papers about Ambien.

My husband and I both take one Ambien once in a while if we can't get to sleep and we sleep six hours. We've never gotten up and gone out and driven our car. We have no reaction at all, just a good night's sleep when we need it.

I love Dan's Papers!

FIXER UPPER

Dear Dan,

The saga of the problems of County Road 39 continues with no end in sight. We have closed door meetings with Federal, State, County and Town officials in attendance with a lot of double talk about short term solutions, half solutions and hopefully, a full solution before the end of this century. This same dialogue has been going on for years with nothing happening.

In the meantime, yes, a solution: Why not make County Road 39 one way eastbound from the Lobster Inn to the merge connecting with Montauk Highway (the Princess Diner) from 5 a.m. until 10 a.m. every day. This would take the pressure off of personnel headed to the hospital, town hall employees, out of town school teachers, automobile sales forces, mechanics and everyone else headed out east for their weekday. At the same time, make Montauk Highway from the west end of Hill Street (Tuckahoe Lane) to the Shinnecock Canal one way westbound for the same 5 a.m. to 10 a.m. time period every day. I'm told by some who should know, that Montauk Highway could handle two way traffic, even with the increased westbound volume during those 5 a.m. to 10 a.m. hours, without any problem – but that decision could be left to the traffic experts to decide. There are plenty of north-south roads to relieve those wanting to go in the other direction rather than the “one way east” if on County Road 39 or “one way west” if on Montauk Highway. These include Hills Station Road, Tuckahoe Road, St. Andrews Road, Tuckahoe Lane, Magee Street, North Sea Road, North Main Street, David Whites Lane and other smaller outlets.

I know there are those who say this could never work – like those who said closing Shrubland Road to eastbound traffic from 7 a.m. until 9 a.m. wouldn't work. Well it is working. Believe me; the publicity for this bold action for County Road 39 would be overwhelmingly positive helping to make it work. The PR for all of those folks who have been stuck for hours on end with the back up of traffic eastbound at the Lobster Inn would be “big time” and a gigantic plus. Sure there would be some logistical problems, but the traffic experts who are frustrated with nothing happening could instead put their talents to this solution and make it work.

So does Government have the courage to take the bull by the horns, or as usual just sit around wringing their hands, having more meetings and saying “sorry, nothing can be done for now, but rest easily we're to authorize another traffic study for County Road 39 to find the problem.” We all know the problem! It's time we did something about it.. Think about it, this solution could work.

LIGHT MY FIRE

Dear Dan,

Your article –Montauk Getting A Traffic Light – We the people of Montauk would like that light.

The intersection of Cox Road and Sound Avenue has become a dangerous situation – speeding cars and trucks. We have to use this intersection every day.

So called studies by the town have been going on for years. The DOT has done nothing.

Hopefully we will survive the summer. Then the accident happens. Hopefully our family and friends will not be involved.

Pat Lockwood
Mattituck

ASK NICELY

Dear Dan,

Re: Beauty And The Beach

The above caption appeared in your magazine recently. You might be interested to learn that the person who submitted it to you, “usurped” my idea.

For the last two years I have that phrase copyrighted with a photo in the International Society Pages of Photogs.

I am holding you blameless obviously. I just want you to know that the above slogan was used without my permission.

HISTORICALLY ACCURATE

Dear Dan,

In the review of The 11th Day in the May 19 issue of Dan's Papers, the author was certainly correct in stating that during WWII the Cretan people resisted the German invasion bravely and at great cost in lives and property. However, the statement “Their only resistance (to the German paratroopers) was Cretan civilians: farmers and shopkeepers” is incorrect. The German attack was also met by a military force of 43,000 Australian, British, Greek and New Zealand soldiers. The fighting was fierce, but the Germans slowly forced the Allies back, capturing the major airfield necessary to fly in reinforcements. The Commonwealth forces suffered 3,500 dead, 1,900 wounded and 17,500 captured.

The Royal Navy managed to evacuate an additional 14,800 troops to Egypt. The German paratroopers and glider forces lost more than 4,000 men dead or missing. After Crete, Hitler forbade any more major airborne campaigns, as he felt the cost in lives and transport aircraft was too high.

V. Dennis Wrynn

Didn't Allied paratroopers later take it back? -DR

Police Blotter

Getting Shot A Lot

A man who is a resident of the Shinnecock Indian Reservation was shot multiple times in the upper right leg on May 1. After that, he was shot again on May 17, this time getting injuries on his foot, left arm and both his legs. Police have said that the attacks were not random acts. Police are uncertain why the man is being targeted. They have recommended that the man watch out for his hands, nose and elbows, since these seem to be the only of his body parts left that have not been shot at.

Digital Camera Arrest

Police arrested a man in Southampton after they caught him in possession of a digital camera, which was reported stolen from a car parked at the beach. Police were lucky enough to find enough evidence to book the man, who had his friend take pictures of him smiling inside and outside the car from which he reportedly stole the digital camera.

* * *

Plasma Flat Screen

A man in Noyac reported to police that somebody had stolen his 42-inch plasma flat screen television, valued at $7,000, from his home sometime between May 16 and 17. The man said that he was going to get a new flat screen television, only this time it would be placed inside a steel cage so that thieves couldn't get to it.

* * *

Small Fire

A man in Amagansett called the Fire Department when a small fire broke out on his deck. He was able to put the fire out before they arrived. The fire was caused by a very hot, hot potato.

Stolen, But Given Back

A man in Amagansett called police when he found that $1,000 had been stolen out of his desk. When the police arrived to talk with him about the incident, his ex-girlfriend showed up and returned the money. The man explained to police that things like this, among other things, was the reason he was no longer going out with her.

* * *

Windshield Stolen

A man called police in Bridgehampton to report that his windshield had been stolen off of his truck. The man noticed that it was missing when he was driving along and a seagull poop landed right in his eye.

Lightning Bolt

Police were called when a bolt of lightning struck and destroyed a tree and damaged several windows, an electric panel and a pool-pump filter at a nearby property. Police assured the owner of the destroyed and damaged items that he could replace them with confidence, saying that lightning never strikes the same place twice.

Smelly Dump Truck

A dump truck in East Hampton caught fire. Fire fighters later determined that the fire was caused by over heated brakes. Investigators determined that the bad smell was from the smell of burning rotten fish.

Chicken In A Box

A ceramic chicken was thrown into a mailbox in Sag Harbor, denting the mailbox. Police told the man who owned the mailbox that he was just really unlucky. Although it is very common for a ceramic chicken to find its way into mailboxes, very rarely do ceramic chickens dent them.

Lower Mortgage Payments by 45%

With Sophisticated Jumbo Loan Program

NY - Mortgages for multi million dollar homes is typically limited to 50% financing, carries a higher rate and requires full income verification.

A scarcely known loan is available for home purchases and refinances that offers up to 90% financing, cuts monthly payments by as much as 45% and requires no income verification. Additionally there are enhanced tax and pre-payment advantages with increased cash flow not available with other mortgages.

Many wonder why they haven't been informed about this unique loan. One reason is this loan does not profit lenders in the same way other loans do so they're not easy to find. The company sponsoring these programs, North Atlantic Mortgage Corp., has made a Free report "Sophisticated Jumbo Financing" available. This report also addresses many other unique types of mortgages, credit issues, and most importantly how to get a great Jumbo loan with no income or asset verification.

If you are self-employed, professional or high-income individual, there are many other savvy "secrets" and various loan options that you probably aren't aware that exist.

Simply call 1-877-794-5363 to request this informative free report.
